

REDS CLAIM RECAPTURE OF BORDER HILL; JAPANESE SHOOT DOWN 5 SOVIET BOMBERS

THREE GEORGIANS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES, BURNS

Victims Are Alton Ballard and Charles Hammett, Both of Hapeville, Wright Leggett, Baxley.

ENGINE TROUBLE BLAMED IN SMASH

Fliers Were En Route Here To Overhaul Motor at Time of Crackup.

Three men, two from Hapeville, were killed late yesterday when a cabin plane crashed and burned in a woods about three miles west of Baxley, Ga.

The dead are:
Walter Hammett, 3693 Union avenue, Hapeville.
Alton Ballard, 3322 North Whitney avenue, Hapeville.
Wright Leggett, of Baxley.

Police Chief Wilson, of Baxley, and Fred Strickland, an undertaker of Baxley, said the six-seater plane had taken off from the Baxley airport bound for Atlanta just a few minutes before it crashed. They said the engine apparently faltered or stopped after the plane had flown two or three miles. The pilot appeared to make an effort to make a forced landing in a field.

Plane Misses Field.
The plane missed the field. In descending it tore into a group of trees and burst into flames. The bodies of the three occupants were burned beyond recognition. The craft was destroyed.

The Atlanta fliers had been in Baxley several days. They had been taking up passengers on short trips for hire. The plane developed engine trouble Sunday. Temporary repairs were made yesterday. The trio then headed for Atlanta to get the plane's power plant overhauled.

Officials at Candler airport last night said Ballard was employed there as a mechanic. He had been employed there three years. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Evelyn Ballard, and a 2-year-old son, Randall. They were grief-stricken when they learned of the tragedy.

Was "Barnstormer."
Candler field officials said Ballard owned the plane jointly with Albert Seamon, of Atlanta. He had been engaged in making "barnstorming" trips.

Sea Washes Up Note; Contradicts Corrigan

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Aug. 1. (Canadian Press)—While playing on the beach here Nancy Chandler, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Chandler, North Attleboro, Mass., picked up a floating bottle containing the following undated note:

"Flying 6,000 feet above Nova Scotia. Tail wind taking me about 120 miles per hour. Should sight Ireland about 5 a. m. tomorrow at that rate. Corrigan."

(Douglas Corrigan, young United States flier, landed at Dublin July 18 after a non-stop flight from New York. He said he had thought he was flying toward California.)

Father Killed in Crackup

Tragedy struck this trio yesterday. The father, Alton Ballard, was killed in plane crash at Baxley. The wife and two-year-old son, Randall, last night were bereaved at the Ballard home in Hapeville.

Barnesville Bans Politics At Festival

Citizens Do Not Want Partisanship Thrust Into REA Celebration.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Lamar county citizens want politics banned from the celebration of the opening of the REA project here on August 11 when President Roosevelt is scheduled to make his Georgia address.

Directors of the Lamar Electric Membership Corporation and the local celebration committee met at the courthouse in Barnesville this afternoon and made known their opposition to politics being a part of the REA celebration until after the departure of the President.

The committee did not state whether its attitude against politics being injected into the Barnesville celebration would be communicated to the chief executive before he reaches Georgia. All Georgia has been listening to the political gossip that the President might discuss partisan politics when he reaches here. Reports have been that it was the President's intention to take part in the Georgia campaign at that time as he has done elsewhere.

Rivers Cites Spectacular Declines In Diseases During Past 18 Months

A decrease of 9.9 per cent in the death rate from all causes and a much greater reduction in the toll from communicable diseases was cited last night by Governor Rivers in rallying support for his program for expansion of the state's public health facilities.

The Governor revealed the lowered mortality rate in a campaign address delivered at a meeting of his followers on the roof of a downtown hotel. The speech was broadcast to the state over Station WSB.

REFORM IS VOTED FOR CITY PRISON, PROBATION WORK

H. H. Gibson Is Elected General Manager of Atlanta Farm; J. C. Ellis Quits as Superintendent.

2 NEW OFFICERS WILL BE NAMED

Funds Are Set Up By Council for Their Pay and for Woman Clerk.

Reform of the city prison and probation system was effected yesterday by city council.

H. H. Gibson, graduate of the University of Georgia Agricultural College, was elected general manager of the prisons and city farm; a new committee was created to supervise the prison department; probation of city prisoners was put under the recorders and funds were set up to employ two additional probation officers and a woman clerk.

Resignation of J. C. Ellis as prison superintendent was accepted. Ellis will continue in service at the farm.

These moves came in answer to recommendations of a special prison investigating committee named after Mayor Hartsfield had termed conditions at the city prison "an ungodly mess."

Plan Followed.
Though Councilman George Lyle, chairman of the public works committee, fought against taking control of the prison and farm from his committee, council members in the majority followed the plan of the special group of Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Councilmen J. Allen Couch and Charles Chosewood.

Action by council will be supplemented by appeals to the legislature to authorize city recorders to sentence habitual drunkards to Milledgeville for a "permanent cure," and to increase the length of sentence the recorders may impose on drunkards to 90 days. Present limit is 30 days.

Ordinance Approved.
Mayor Hartsfield, during council meeting, approved an ordinance setting up the new position of general manager—so that Gibson could be elected at once. A $200 per month salary was set up.

Gibson, who graduated from the

G.S.C.W. EMPLOYS PROFESSOR TRIED FOR 'SUBVERSION'

Dr. Mack Swearingen Ends 3-Year Fight With Tulane Authorities; To Take Milledgeville Post.

MEMBER OF GROUP DEFENDING REDS

President Wells Declares He Knows Nothing of Reported 'Liberalism.'

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(UP)

After a stormy three-year battle with Tulane University authorities during which he once was charged and tried by the university board for "subversive" activities, Dr. Mack Swearingen, of the history department, has resigned to become head of the division of social sciences at Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, Ga., next month.

Dr. Swearingen resigned four weeks ago from Tulane. Three other teachers had previously resigned and other resignations announced today include Dr. H. C. Nixon, head of the history department for 10 years, and Dr. Williams Mitchell, an assistant to Dr. Nixon.

Dr. Swearingen, asked about his resignation said, "I do not believe I am free at this time to comment."

All those who resigned were members of an eight-man group which handed the Tulane board of administrators a list of recommendations for the improvement of the university. The list was presented November 1, 1935, and contracts for the instructors were not renewed the following summer.

Dr. Swearingen after trial by the university authorities was acquitted but it was claimed that he presided at a meeting of "Friends of Democratic Spain" and was member of a committee which protested to the mayor over the allegedly illegal arrests of Communists. Swearingen admitted the charges but denied they were subversive. After his acquittal he became president of the newly organized "Louisiana League for the Preservation of Constitutional Rights."

DR. WELLS UNINFORMED OF "LIBERAL" ACTIVITIES

Dr. Guy H. Wells, president of Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, said last night he knew nothing of the "liberal" activities of the newly elected faculty member, Dr. Mack Swearingen.

Dr. Wells declared that he had recommended Dr. Swearingen to the board of regents after receiving a "highly favorable" report on the teacher from Dr. H. C. Nixon, who also resigned, and others prominent in southern education.

He said that Dr. Swearingen was to assume his duties as head of the division of social sciences when the fall term opens. Beyond asserting he knew nothing of Dr. Swearingen's trouble at Tulane, the G. S. C. W. president withheld further comment.

Whistles, Bells Greet Men Returning to Jobs

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad's shop whistles today tooted a merry greeting—the first in eight months—as the vanguard of some 10,000 workers began trickling back to their jobs to share in an $8,321,000 building program.

Mingling with the whistles were church bells heralding a new phase of optimism in this western Pennsylvania town which depends to a great extent upon the shops, virtually idle since January.

Included in the building program is the construction of 20 electric locomotives and 1,000 freight cars.

Guardsmen, Mobilizing, Cannot Enter Memphis

National Guard troops are shown mobilizing at Jackson for Thursday's Democratic primary.

A federal injunction granted in Memphis yesterday will prevent troops from "policing" Memphis polling places in Thursday's election. Adjutant General R. O. Smith, left, and Colonel J. R. Stark are shown at Nashville, where troops have been mobilized and held on orders of Governor Browning.

Browning Defies U. S. Order To Keep Soldiers From Polls

Missouri, Kansas, West Virginia, Virginia Hold Elections Today.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, a foe of many administration measures, is bidding tomorrow for a thumping renomination majority and a chance at the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940.

A primary sweep for the son of the famous Democratic house leader, who came near winning the presidential nomination from Woodrow Wilson in 1912, would increase talk among anti-Roosevelt Democrats of putting him forward in '40 as a "compromise" candidate to stop the New Deal's man, whoever he may be.

That makes the size of Clark's vote a matter of widespread interest in tomorrow's numerous elections, which include primary voting in Kansas, Virginia and West Virginia as well as in Missouri.

President Roosevelt has not entered the Missouri campaign, and Clark has the support of both Democratic factions which are fighting in the state for control of the party. Joseph T. Davis, of St. Louis, and Willis H. Meredith, of Poplar Bluff, are running against him as "100 per cent New Dealers."

In the neighboring state of Kansas, Senator McGill, a full-fledged New Dealer, and Governor Huxman have had no organized opposition in their campaigns for Democratic renomination. There has been a bitter campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination, however, in which one of the candidates, the Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, has been opposed by National Chairman John Hamilton and other party leaders. Winrod, an evangelist, has been accused of religious intolerance and in turn has

Browning Calls For Impeachment

SOMERVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Governor Browning, pausing here tonight en route from Memphis where he addressed a political rally, referred to Federal Judge John D. Martin's issuance of a restraining order to prevent the mobilization of national guards in Memphis on election day as a "disgrace" and added "he ought to be impeached."

"John D. Martin is a former chairman of the Shelby county executive committee," the Governor said. "He is a cousin of 'the czar' of Shelby county. His son is now chairman of the executive committee of Shelby county that is undertaking to steal the election on August 4."

"His action is a disgrace. He ought to be impeached. If the situation warrants it, I will send troops in. The injunction is silly."

1,187 Guardsmen Are Mobilized and Held at Three Cities.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP) Governor Browning defied before a cheering crowd of thousands to night a federal court injunction to prevent his moving national guard troops into the city for Thursday's Democratic primary.

"The idea of letting a federal injunction deter me from handling the state's troops is silly and absurd," he said in his first speech of the campaign in the stronghold of his political foe and former ally, E. H. Crump.

Browning ridiculed attorneys employed by Crump and Mayor Watkins Overton for seeking the injunction when no troops were in Memphis. He said in a statement last night the troops, now concentrated in other cities for regular army maneuvers, would not be sent in unless he changed his mind.

The Governor added the attorneys were "trying to sew up a place before it was ripped" and said his final decision on troop

Father, Aged 81, Boasts New Born 26th Child 'Beautiful Like Others'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—George Boorman, 81-year-old steamship line employee, boasted today that his "twenty-sixth child," born yesterday, is "beautiful—just like all the others."

The baby, an eight-pound boy, was born to Boorman's 21-year-old wife, Edith Williams Boorman, at Providence hospital. It is her first.

"About 10 or 12 of 'em are livin' but I don't just recollect where they all are. I've been married twice since then, but had no more children until this fine boy."

Boorman said he met his present wife while working at the farm of her father, James Reed, of Williams, 50, of Charles county, Md. They were married last September.

CLASHES THROW POWERS NEAREST WAR IN 23 YEARS

400 Nipponese Killed and Wounded in Battle for Changkufeng, Captured From Russia Sunday.

EMPEROR STAYS CLOSE TO PHONE

Southwestern Japan Is Darkened; Full Air Raid Precautions Enforced.

TOKYO—(Tuesday) Aug. 2.—(UP)—Japan and Russia today were nearer to a general war than at any time since their great struggle which ended in 1905 as Red army troops reported recapturing a strategic hill along the disputed Manchoukuo-Siberia frontier from Japanese forces who stormed and occupied it during bitter fighting Sunday.

(A Soviet communique said 400 Japanese soldiers were killed and wounded when Soviet troops wrested Changkufeng hill from them. Soviet casualties were listed as 13 dead and 55 wounded.)

Contradicting this assertion was announcement by the Japanese foreign office that three Soviet bombers attacked the contested hill and said it was still occupied by Japanese forces, at 4 a. m. Tuesday.

More than 500,000 Japanese infantrymen—flower of the Imperial armies—faced an estimated 1,000,000 Soviet soldiers and auxiliaries along the huge loop of the frontier between Manchoukuo and Siberia.

Other developments in the tangled border controversy include: Headquarters of the Japanese Korean army, in Seoul, announced that five of a fleet of Soviet planes which bombed and machine-gunned Korean villages and railway junctions in the Possiet bay area were shot down.

In Tokyo the full cabinet met to meet during the day to decide issues on which the fate of the empire may hinge. Premier Prince Fumimaro Koyama was in constant touch with his colleagues and with slight, bespectacled Emperor Hirohito, who remained beside a telephone in his villa at the seashore resort of Hayama, near the great naval base in Yokosuka.

In southwestern Japan, nearest the fortified Russian air base in Vladivostok, the country was darkened and full air-raid precautions were in force.

Rumors were circulated that Soviet nationals had been ordered to leave the International Settlement in Shanghai owing to danger of

DISPUTES ON WELCOME

SETTLED BY CORRIGAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(P)—Douglas Corrigan denied today the hotly disputed question of where and how he is to be welcomed in New York Thursday.

LOYALISTS TAKE CAMARENA BLUFF

Federal Troops Advance to Within 10 Miles of Strategic City of Teruel.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Aug. 1.—(P)—General Jose Miaja's central Spanish government army stormed and captured the strategic "bluff of Camarena" 13 miles south of Teruel today, forcing insurgent Generalissimo Franco to hurry troops from other fronts to defend his Teruel lines.

Dispatches from both sides agreed that Miaja's moves were designed to capture the insurgents off-guard at the moment they were using every available man to protect Gandesa, 100 miles northeast of Teruel, against government offensives from Catalonia.

In constant touch with his field commanders near Gandesa on the Ebro river front, General Miaja ordered a sudden attack from the south which resulted in capture of the high promontory at Camarena dominating a dozen villages and hamlets, including Valdeolocha, Cascabte and Cuba, all a few miles to the north.

The advance brought government guns within 10 miles of Teruel, capital of the province of Teruel, which the government

Two Complete World Cruise In 45-Foot Boat

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 1.—(P)—Ray Kauffman, 32, and Gerry Mefford, 27, came back to the United States today, three years, three months and 23 days after they set sail around the world in a 45-foot boat.

They were tanned, but smiling and happy and hastened to assure their mothers, who had come all the way from Des Moines, Iowa, to meet them, that they were in the best of health.

"Why look at me," Mefford said, "I've gained 20 pounds." Their most thrilling experience, they said, was when they had to decide whether to stay with their ship and face death by drowning or go 12 miles across the open Pacific in a row boat and land on an island inhabited by cannibals. They landed on the island.

seized and lost less than six months ago.

The success of this surprise attack forced insurgent field commanders in the Teruel area to demand reinforcements to protect not only insurgent positions along the Teruel-Sagunto highway to the coast, but the city of Teruel itself. Camarena is six miles southwest of the highway.

There was intense activity behind both fronts during the last 48 hours. The government was transferring men and material across the Ebro into the newly conquered zone before Gandesa.

General Franco was trying to defend both the Teruel and Ebro sectors, at the same time pushing his own counter-attacks in the northern and southern Ebro zones.

ALLIES O. K. LIFTING BULGAR ARMS BAN

Similar Action To Free Hungary Is Seen in Near Future.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(P)—Bulgaria's old enemies, the allied powers of the World War, today chorused approval of Balkan action freeing Bulgaria from post-war treaty restrictions on armaments and armies.

At the same time there appeared to be no bar to similar action by Hungary, the only nation still nominally bound by the restrictions by the victorious allies.

Others of the wartime central powers—Germany and Turkey, already have thrown off rearmament bonds.

In a pact signed yesterday at Salonika, the Balkan entente—Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Yugoslavia—gave Bulgaria equality in maintaining her army, navy and air force and at the same time established a nonaggression agreement among the participating nations.

The move was regarded as regularization of Bulgaria's rearmament which long has existed in fact.

To abrogate armaments clauses of the post-war treaty of Neuilly Bulgaria first obtained approval of the Balkan entente and then of the record approval from treaty signatories—principally Britain and France.

Informed British sources said the government warmly welcomed any understanding between nations which would minimize the chances of war. French sources echoed this sentiment.

Informed observers in Italy believed Bulgaria was assured an Italian "benediction" while Italy would work for similar freedom for Hungary.

The treaty of Trianon stripped Hungary of arms. The new step heartened Hungary, where a strong treaty revisionist movement exists.

Pilot's Down on the Ground and Down in the Mouth

The Constitution staff photographer late yesterday found Owen MacRobert, 30-year-old pilot, really blue and downcast on a "blue Monday" at Candler airport. ATTEMPT TO CURB FLYING IS CHARGED Grounded Instructor Protests Seizing of License to Washington.

A grounded flight instructor at Candler field yesterday charged a Department of Commerce aeronautics official with attempting to discourage private ownership and flying of planes at the field.

The instructor, Owen MacRobert, 30-year-old pilot for a private aircraft corporation at Candler field, declared Roy Kelley, airline inspector at the field, was "playing politics" in seizing his license to fly.

MacRobert's license was taken up by Kelley yesterday morning on a charge the flight instructor had violated Department of Commerce regulations in landing a student training plane on one wheel Sunday.

MacRobert said he was merely testing the strength of the right landing gear, which had been damaged in a forced landing and repaired. He charged Kelley refused to listen to the explanation and was using the incident to curb private flying.

"Several owners of planes here have sold them and announced they didn't think it worth while to learn to fly because there were too many restrictions keeping them out of their planes," he said.

At first refusing to turn over his license to Kelley, MacRobert sent a telegram to Department of Commerce aeronautics officials in Washington protesting the seizure and charging Kelley had threatened to have all ships of the aircraft corporation grounded.

Kelley denied making the threat, adding that he had "no ax to grind" for any pilot or private corporation.

"We are treating all the private corporations on the field alike and showing no partiality or so-called politics," he said. "MacRobert's statement is uncalled for and will in no way help his case."

"He will be given a hearing before a board in Washington as soon as we complete records of his violations. He has been a habitual violator of the regulations here and I have cautioned him several times. We merely relate the facts to Washington and an impartial board passes upon them."

J. F. Byrd, president of the Blaine Aircraft Corporation, where MacRobert is employed, said Kelley had intimated he was going to take steps to have all his planes grounded.

"It looks as if he is trying to run certain private operators off the field," he said.

On the other hand, Kelley said officials in the governmental air branch at the field had "always tried to co-operate with private operators."

"In landing that plane on one wheel MacRobert endangered not only himself and equipment but also several Sunday spectators at the field," Kelley said. "He violated Department of Commerce regulations both in his approach to the field and in his manner of landing. He very easily could have hooked a wing and hurtled into the crowd."

MacRobert denied having broken any air regulations in the test landing. He was alone at the time.

"The only reason I undertook that landing was as a safety precaution to students who would fly the plane," he said. "Kelley would not listen to my side of the story but insisted he was going to shake the sock personally for everyone with the Blevins corporation."

"Restrictions on private flying here are so tight that they have curbed and discouraged people from learning how to fly and have retarded aviation in this part of the country. With the large amount of air traffic, I believe there should be strict rules and regulations but there should be no overstepping the bounds or going out of the way to ground veteran pilots."

MacRobert's story. MacRobert said he was landing a light Piper Cub plane which was cracked up Wednesday when a student on a solo flight stalled his engine in a test spin. Instead of diving and starting his engine again, the student made a "dead-stick" landing and bent the landing gear, he said.

The gear had been repaired by a licensed mechanic and MacRobert said he was asked to make a test flight. In his telegram to government officials in Washington, MacRobert asked permission to keep on flying pending the public hearing there.

Kelley, who is acting supervisor of inspectors in the absence of Wiley Wright, supervisor at Candler field, said he did not know when the hearing would be held but said that MacRobert is grounded until that date.

Byrd said he had been asked to give Kelley a log of all his equipment.

CARROLL IS NAMED TO REPLACE BUTLER

Lieutenant Becomes Acting Captain in Series of Transfers.

Station Lieutenant Luther J. Carroll was named acting captain of police yesterday in a special order issued by Chief M. A. Hornsby.

Carroll succeeds Captain G. T. Butler, who yesterday began an accumulated leave of absence before retiring at the end of this month.

Carroll joined the police department in 1916, and was made motorcycle lieutenant in 1935.

On orders for routine transfers, Carroll was assigned the evening watch, with the lieutenant, T. O. Cawthon as station lieutenant, and W. E. Whitten as assistant.

Captain S. J. Roberts will command the morning watch, with Acting Station Lieutenants S. D. Satterfield, succeeding Carroll, Captain G. N. Ellis will be in charge of the day watch, with Jack Williams as station lieutenant, and Claude Carroll as his assistant. Plainsclothesman H. A. Beatty was returned to the radio patrol at his own request. He was succeeded in the detective department by Radio Patrolman W. E. Hickey.

Final Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for James Dorrer Ryan, 43, assistant sales manager in Atlanta of the southern division of The Best Foods, Inc., who died Sunday in Corning, N. Y., will be held there tomorrow morning, with burial to be in a cemetery there. Mr. Ryan came to Atlanta eight years ago from New York and was on an unbusiness trip to Winston-Salem, N. C., 10 days ago when he was taken sick. He and his wife, the former Dorothy Seamons, lived at 753 Yorkshire road, N. E.

HUGHES, CREW HOP TO LOS ANGELES

Round World Fliers Given Big Welcome.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—(P)—Back to the hangar where he and his aides spent months in preparation for their world-circling flight, Howard Hughes returned today and a few minutes later was plunged into another of the civic celebrations which have marked his cross-country tour.

Thousands lined downtown streets to cheer the pilot as he rode to a luncheon to receive compliments of the public officials. With him were Edward Lund, flight engineer; Richard Stoddard, radio engineer; Lieutenant Thomas Thurlow, army navigator, and Harry P. M. Connor, co-navigator, who were with him on the world tour.

Rozier is president of the local council.

REWARD OFFERED FOR SCARBOROUGH

Governor Answers Fugitive's Demand With Order To Put Him in Jail.

The offer of S. J. (Slim) Scarborough, escaped life-terminer, to give himself up in return for a written executive order permitting him to be near his mother was spurned by Governor Rivers yesterday.

The Governor instead ordered a $250 reward for his capture and an additional $250 reward for apprehension of any party or parties harboring or aiding Scarborough in his flight from the law.

Look-out notices for Scarborough were sent throughout Georgia and neighboring states yesterday and state highway patrolmen were ordered to double their search for the convicted murderer.

Governor Rivers said he first read Scarborough's terms of surrender in The Sunday Constitution. As yet he has not been approached directly in reference to the terms.

No Special Treatment. "I am ordering a reward of $250 for Scarborough's arrest and delivery to Tattall prison," he said. "When he is recaptured, he will be given no preferential treatment, but will be treated as any other prisoner under those circumstances. He will be placed in Tattall prison where he can't get out."

IN ATLANTA HOSPITALS

Carl S. Millard, of 1067 West Peachtree street, N. E., widely known choir director and organist of the Grant Park Methodist church, is "improving steadily" at Emory University hospital after undergoing an operation several weeks ago.

Little Rose Barry Trammel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Trammel, of 1050 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., was in "good" condition last night at the Ponce de Leon Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat infirmary after a tonsil operation.

Admitted to the Crawford W. Long hospital yesterday for surgical treatment, William Jahaley, of Copper Hill, Tenn., was in "good" condition last night, attaches said.

In "fairly good" condition last night at Emory University hospital was A. S. Johnson, of 846 Hunnicott street, N. W., who was admitted to the hospital yesterday for medical treatment.

Operated on for tonsillitis yesterday at the Ponce de Leon Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat infirmary, Earl Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bowers, of 1214 Cumberland road, N. E., was in "very good" condition last night.

Mrs. H. C. Ball, of 486 Boulevard place, N. E., was in "good" condition last night at Crawford W. Long hospital, where she was admitted yesterday for surgical treatment.

Miss Cecile DuBols, of 1336 Piedmont avenue, N. E., was in "good" condition last night at St. Joseph's hospital after being operated on yesterday, according to attaches.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital yesterday afternoon for surgical treatment. He was in "good" condition last night, attaches said.

Admitted to St. Joseph's hospital yesterday afternoon for surgical treatment, Mrs. Julia Jones, of 305 Atlanta avenue, S. E., was in "fair" condition last night. She is slated to undergo an operation today.

Attaches at Georgia Baptist hospital said last night the condition of Mrs. Harry L. Brown, of 308 West Forest avenue, College Park, who was admitted for surgical treatment, was "good."

Robert L. Casteel, 70, of Plymouth road, was admitted to Grady hospital yesterday with a fractured hip, sustained in a fall on his property yesterday afternoon. Attaches last night described his condition as "fair."

A fall down a full flight of stairs in a downtown office building late yesterday afternoon, sent Robert E. Henderson, 56, of 564 Melville avenue, S. W., to Grady hospital with a broken shoulder. Hospital attendants said his condition was "fair" last night.

Mrs. Mary Rather, of 795 Peachtree street, N. E., was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital yesterday for medical treatment and was in "good" condition last night, attendants reported.

DR. COLLINS TO SPEAK. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, will speak at the special ladies' and educational night meeting of the Watkinsville Civitan Club in Watkinsville at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Rebates in Discounts Offset Office Expense

The truth of the adage that "a penny saved is a penny earned" was borne out last month by the State Procurement Office, United States Treasury Department, which, in reckoning its accounts for July, found that the cost of operation of the office was offset by rebates in discounts on bills paid during the month. Casting up his accounts, Harry E. Harmon Jr., state procurement officer, found that cost of operations for July amounted to $4,302.26. Rebates on bills paid during the month amounted to $4,337.15, the net result being a "profit" of $34.89.

Mr. Harmon said yesterday he had only one regret—he had overlooked the discount on one purchase valued at 10 cents.

Fishing Story? It Was—Now It's Bear Story

Assistant Solicitor General E. E. Andrews went fishing Friday in the Okefenokee swamp and returned yesterday with a new version of the story about the three bears.

In the new story, Andrews, instead of Goldilocks, became involved with the papa bear—in fact, the papa bear jumped out of a tree right on top of the assistant solicitor, he said. And all the while a coiled, cottonmouth water moccasin was behind Andrews watching the goings-on, he insisted.

Along with A. L. Belle Isle and George Ripley, Atlanta businessmen, Andrews invaded the interior of the swamp to fish. Saturday they saw three bears in a tree and Andrews stopped to observe.

"The big one wanted to come down, but was afraid of me then looking at him," Andrews explained during a court recess. "He finally gave a growl and jumped, however, and landed on me."

Andrews said he was knocked to the ground and the bear did not linger, but sped away. "But you should have seen the snake behind me where I started to run," Andrews began as Judge James C. Davis mounted the bench, rapped for order and cut the snake story short.

HISTORICAL GROUP LAUDS SPALDING

President of Society Retires; Frank K. Boland Fills Post.

Progress the Atlanta Historical Society made under the presidency of Jack J. Spalding was cited yesterday by society members upon the retirement of Mr. Spalding from the position.

Due to reasons of health, Mr. Spalding relinquished the post he had held since July, 1936, and Frank K. Boland was elected president to fill his unexpired term.

"Under his leadership, the society was reorganized and placed on a professional and sound financial basis," read a resolution offered by John Ashley Jones, which was adopted by the society at its quarterly meeting.

"It has headquarters of its own, with a trained executive officer in charge of the work which embraces both historical and literary activities," membership is now more than five times larger than when Mr. Spalding assumed the presidency.

The quarterly publication of the Atlanta Historical Bulletin and other progressive moves were taken under Mr. Spalding's guidance. Beverley M. DuBose was elected curator of the society at the quarterly gathering.

SKELETON OF WHITE MAN IS IDENTIFIED

Negroes Find Remains While Cutting Timber.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Coroner E. B. Sauls reports that an inquest was held Friday over the skeleton of a white man found by negroes cutting timber near the old Gibson place, at Big Sandy.

Mrs. Wilbur Jackson identified the remains by the clothes, pocket knife and shoes as that of Ellis Nichols, who had been missing since June 1. She said revenue officers were searching for him when he disappeared.

The remains were taken to Gordon for burial.

STATE'S SCHOOL BOARDS ASK FUNDS

PWA Urged To Allocate $1,217,499 Additional and One New Building.

Georgia school boards yesterday applied for Public Works Administration aid for one new school and amended applications for 10 other projects involving construction costs of $1,217,499. It was announced by H. T. Cole, regional PWA administrator. Total grants for these projects will amount to $507,728.

The University System applied for increased grants in the sum of $52,534 to boost construction costs on projects at Dahlonega, Athens, Atlanta and Statesboro.

The board of education at LaGrange amended applications on four projects by striking out requests for PWA loans.

Richmond County Board of Education sought an increase of $4,189 in PWA funds to increase costs of school construction, while a new application for a $109,090 school project was filed by the Swainsboro Board of Education, which asked $49,090 in federal grants and a loan of $60,000.

WOUNDED TAXI MAN'S CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Walter E. Smith, 33-year-old taxicab driver, who was shot in the back Sunday night in front of 327 Fair street, S. W., a short time after two well-dressed men entered his car at Washington and Hunter streets, was reported to be in serious condition last night in Grady hospital.

Police were holding Mrs. Luther C. Brewer, near whose house the shooting occurred, and who they believed to have witnessed the incident. Mrs. Brewer claimed yesterday that she ran from the house when she heard the shots, and met two men walking away from the taxi. She said she asked them what had happened, and they replied they didn't know, and walked on.

MRS. L. A. REBB RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

PUT 'BAN ON BROMIDES,' G. O. P. DRAFTERS TOLD

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Chairman Glenn Frank asked Republican program committee today to establish a "ban on bromides."

He said he requested the members whose duty is to draft a new statement of party policies to "refrain from substituting slogans for thoughts," in whatever documents they may prepare, by not using any of the following words:

"Liberal, conservative, radical, reactionary, totalitarian, alien, Communist, Fascist, regimentation and dictatorship."

Now speculation has turned to what President Roosevelt will do since the people who have invited him have made known their views regarding injecting politics into the celebration.

Here is the statement issued by the committee today:

"Realizing that President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, part-time citizen of Georgia, is paying our REA project, our county and our city a distinct honor in visiting our community on August 11 to dedicate our project, the first REA project ever honored by his presence, and realizing that the eyes of the state and the nation are centered on this celebration and this community, we desire to invite all citizens of the state to be our guests on this day and help us make the occasion one of joy and pleasure to our beloved President."

"Forget Differences."

"We, the undersigned officers and directors of the project and members of committees for the celebration, therefore urge our people to lay aside all political differences as we have done, and to work together for the glorification of our city, county and state to the end that this gala day may be made successful and enjoyable."

"We, therefore, urge all candidates and friends of candidates to refrain from campaigning in Lamar county, and to refrain from use of partisan banners and posters until after the President's visit on August 11, 1938. The day we dedicate as the President's day and thereafter we invite any and all candidates and their friends to visit our county and we will then endeavor to make their sojourn here also pleasant and enjoyable."

The statement was signed by H. L. Smith, president; A. L. Carter, vice president; A. N. Moye, secretary; E. C. Milner, treasurer; W. P. Elder, J. E. Ballard and W. H. Dunn, directors; Harvey J. Kennedy, attorney; A. K. Maddox, assistant attorney; decorations committee, Dr. J. A. Corry, chairman; C. A. Bryant, E. L. Coleman, W. C. Shelor, C. F. agricultural college in 1925, was superintendent of the Red Hill school near Barnesville. He was recommended by officials of the University of Georgia, including President Harmon Caldwell.

Councilman Howard Haire, noting E. H. (Fat) Elrod, Atlanta salesman, sitting in council chamber, nominated Elrod for general manager, while Alderman Roy Callaway placed the name of Virgil Adams, Atlanta lawyer, in the voting.

When Mayor Hartsfield presiding, councilmen elected Gibson.

He got nine votes, Adams got five and Elrod three.

Intimidation Charged.

Lytle charged Ellis' resignation was gained through intimidation, which was denied by Gilliam and Council.

"Ellis told us the greatest obstacle he had in running the prison and farm was the interference of the chairman of the public works committee (Lytle)," Couch asserted. "I hope I die if that isn't what he said."

Councilman Lytle argued against creation of the new "farm and prison" committee (to be composed of three members named by the mayor) on the grounds that councilmen already had enough committee meetings to attend.

New Probation Officers.

Two new probation officers, to be appointed by Recorder John Cone and A. W. Callaway and to serve at the pleasure of the recorder, are to be employed August 15. The sum of $2,025 was appropriated with which to pay their salaries and the salary of the woman clerk until the end of the year.

The present probation officer will continue making four of four to handle probation work in the recorder's court.

They will handle probation of first offenders and others convicted in the court when they and the recorder deem probation better than sending them to the stockade.

SALARY BOOSTS VOTED FOR 28 CITY WORKERS

Salary increases for 28 city employees were voted by council but were held up by the aldermanic board by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, who served notice of reconsideration.

Councilmen J. Allen Couch and Cecil W. Hester Friday planned to seek increases for 70 city workers.

19 DERBY WINNERS
GET THEIR PRIZES

Throng Cheers Starry-Eyed Group of Youngsters on Stage.

By AL HAILEY.

Several thousand dollars worth of prizes in miniature automobiles, bicycles, merchandise and other awards were given to 19 winners in the famous boys' racing classic The Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby—last night from the stage of Loew's Grand theater.

It was a starry-eyed bunch of youngsters that stood behind the footlights and received plaudits of the audience and rewards for their participation in the "blue-ribbon event of boydom."

For Lamar McDaniel, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McDaniel, of 343 Hopkins street, S. W., was the starting point for a trip to Akron, Ohio, to participate as north Georgia's champion in national and international Soap Box Derby finals there August 14.

Young McDaniel, whose fire-fighter father drives the hook and ladder truck for fire station No. 1, received the grand prize for driving his racer, "The Rebel," to victory in the North Georgia finals.

Akron Trip One Prize.

The grand prize consisted of more than a thousand dollars in prizes and merchandise offered by Atlanta business houses in addition to the trip to Akron with all expenses paid by The Constitution.

As the youngsters were handed their prizes last night by H. M. Vandevender, derby director for The Constitution, folks in the audience sat back and got a big kick and wished they were kids again.

A little bashful and a little dazed by it all, the winners of the major awards left the stage loaded with prizes which included two miniature automobiles, two bicycles, silver trophies, gold medals, and orders for several hundred dollars in merchandise.

Young McDaniel received the miniature motor-driven car, presented by Rich's, the E. L. trophy, and the Soap Box Derby championship wrist watch presented by Chevrolet Motor Company; free trip to Akron national races with all expenses paid for the round-trip, presented by The Constitution; a traveling bag presented by the Luggage Shop; shoes, presented by the Edwards Shoe Store; $5 in cash, given by Hugh Flury Jr., and $5 in merchandise from boys' department of Schulte-United.

Wood Lathe Awarded.

The north Georgia champ also received a motor-driven wood lathe and saw outfit and other prizes.

He will compete in the Akron races for a chance at a four-year scholarship in any college or university in the United States, as well as two Chevrolet automobiles and thousands of dollars worth of other prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel and Lamar are going to leave for Akron August 10 in their private car. They expect to arrive late the following day and rest up for the derby the following Sunday. Two national networks will broadcast the races.

Vandevender last night announced names of new winners selected during the day by judges. First, second and third prize winners for the best-built cars and entrants with the best upholstered car, the car with the best and safest brakes, and the car with the best steering entered by the state.

Preston Mauldin, adjudged the owner of the best-built auto, won a miniature automobile given by the Nu-Graze Bottling Company. David Cobb, with second place, and Paul Trammell, with third prize, also received their share of prizes.

Prizes were given to Paul DeWald, for the best brakes; to Albert Clark, for the best upholstering, and to Homer Bradley Jr., for the best steering auto.

But brought in papers yesterday affecting only 28.

Over objections of Alderman Gilliam and Council C. M. Bolen, council approved the raises which were for the most part restorations to the basic pay that was cut before general pay reductions were made during the depression.

The increases would be paid in the 28 instances through transfer of funds within departments, no money being appropriated.

Seventeen are in the water department and 10 in the tax assessor's office. The other raise was for Jack Gray, manager of the airport, from $250 to $300 per month.

Gilliam also held up leasing of an asphalt plant from Fred T. Bridges, which lease was held up last meeting by Councilmen Couch and Bolen. Council voted for the lease yesterday over their objections, but it struck a snag in the aldermanic board.

Bridges guarantees that the city would be able to make its own asphalt for $2.25 a ton—a dollar less than it pays now.

$9,260 APPROPRIATED FOR MANY ACTIVITIES

Council appropriated $7,260 for city activities and approved a new scale of fees to be charged for services to Techwood and University projects.

The proposal of the housing authority to pay the city $13,000 annually for services at the two projects, and to pay up the back fees totaling $19,700 was accepted. The city's share of the proceeds will be turned over to the Atlanta Housing Authority.

Appropriations included: $1,000 to fight fixing of minimum coal prices by the bituminous coal commission; $980 for operation of the John A. White park; $500 each for the conventions of the International Association of Firefighters and City, County and State Employees' Union; $1,000 for a new truck for the cemetery department, and $2,800 for outfitting a library at the Samuel Inman school.

Also, purchase of a $2,250 road building machine by the construction department, and printing of

"We have enacted the first cancer control law in the nation," he said in reference to this disease, "and for the first time, we are equipped to seriously engage in mastering this dread malady."

Infant Mortality Drops.

Reflecting some of the work done in disease prevention as well as in teaching pre-natal care, Rivers said infant mortality has declined 10.4 per cent and maternity mortality 7.5 per cent.

"We have the right to be born under the most favorable conditions and the state owes it to every woman to establish every safeguard possible for her protection," Rivers said.

"We have enacted the first cancer control law in the nation," he said in reference to this disease, "and for the first time, we are equipped to seriously engage in mastering this dread malady."

F. D. R. SAYS SHARKS HAMPER FISHING

Honors for Biggest Catch Go to President.

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, COCOS ISLAND, AUG. 1.—(AP)—

Via Naval Radio—Members of President Roosevelt's fishing party returning aboard tonight blaming sharks for their failure to catch fish in greater numbers.

Eager to try their luck in Cocos Island waters, the party put out this morning, but reported on their return that time after time, when game fish were hooked, only their heads were pulled in.

The President took his small boat well out to the windward side of the island, though other members of the group elected to stay in the more calm waters on the sheltered side. They experienced the worst interference from sharks, and when the catch was weighed and counted, honors for the biggest fish and the most fish went to the President and his boat.

Senate Probers Send Observers Into Tennessee To Watch Voting

Vigil Will Be Kept on State Campaigns Until November Balloting, Chairman Sheppard Declares in Announcing Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Chairman Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, disclosed today that the senate campaign expenditures committee would have a group of investigators in Tennessee Thursday to "observe" the Democratic primary.

He said the committee representatives also were under orders to report any irregularities they might find in the state's senatorial campaign before election day. If any report is received, Sheppard added, it will be placed before the committee at a meeting Wednesday.

The Texan explained his committee's work had "only begun" with investigations of the state primary campaigns. In Tennessee and elsewhere, he said, a watch will be kept until the November elections.

Senator Berry, Democrat, Tennessee, running for the senatorial nomination against three other candidates, told the committee today in response to a questionnaire that he had received no campaign contributions and had spent $6,030.91 in his campaign.

Senator McAdoo, Democrat, Cal., reported contributions of $8,615, including $2,500 from Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier; $5,000 from J. P. Getty, of Los Angeles, and $1,000 from Francis H. McAdoo, of New York.

Sheppard said Representative John L. McClellan, opposing Senator Caraway for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Arkansas, had made a complaint, but he declined to discuss it until it is presented to the committee.

The chairman said he had written Robert A. Taft, Republican running for the senate in Ohio, to have his campaign committee report expenditures at once.

George White, opposing Senator Bulkeley for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Ohio, reported contributions of $700 and expenditures of $879. Thomas Coughlin, treasurer of the "Bulkeley for senator" committee, reported contributions of $20,691 and expenditures of $16,083. Arthur H. Day, opposing Taft for the Republican nomination, reported contributions of $4,089 and expenditures of $3,801.

Excepting the Smith-Dodd race, there is little of national significance in the primaries in Virginia or in West Virginia. Neither state elects senators or governors this year, but West Virginia is choosing a state legislature in addition to members of the national house.

National interest centers in the final primary of the week, that in Kentucky. There Senator Buckley, the administration's senate leader, is engaged in a bitter struggle for renomination with Governor "Happy" Chandler.

It was in behalf of Buckley that President Roosevelt made the boldest effort of his recent continental trip to influence party primary selections. The outcome of the voting is certain, therefore, to be interpreted generally as a victory, or a severe setback, for the administration.

IT HAPPENED AGAIN.

movements would "have no relation to any injunction."

"There's nobody afraid of good clean boys like those of the 17th infantry unless their deeds should make them afraid," the Governor declared. "If they had come down here, they wouldn't have worried honest voters. They're fine Americans. They come from the best families of the state."

Lieutenant Toll Fowler, of the city police department (anti-Browning), estimated the crowd at 5,500 while Browning supporters said it ran from 10,000 to 15,000.

The Governor said he would come to Shelby county with a majority of 100,000 and that if "I come out of this county with less than 25,000 votes there'll be something crooked about it."

Federal Judge John D. Martin issued the injunction earlier today. It was served on Browning shortly after he arrived in Memphis with a sound truck blaring forth the tune, "I Want to Meet the Bully of the Town."

In a withering attack on Governor Browning, Judge Martin issued the order restraining the Governor from entering Memphis with troops and preventing the pro-Browning county election commission from refusing the right to vote to persons having certificates of registration from the regular biennial registration last August.

Told by the petitioners that Governor Browning had said a federal injunction could not prevent movement of troops into Memphis if he decided to issue it, Judge Martin declared from the bench:

"Win the Governor of the State threatens the violations of orders of the United States court, then it is full time for the United States court to act to restrain the acts of a tyrannical despot."

The petition was signed by 40 persons, headed by Sheriff Guy Joyner and the coalition candidates for Governor, senator and utilities commissioner and charged there was the threat of a violation of the 14th, 15th and 19th amendments to the federal constitution. They charged an invasion by the militia would frighten women and negroes and violate rights of citizens to vote freely.

"I'm going to tell why Crump fell out with me," the Governor declared at his home at Hunting-

COUNCIL CONSIDERS MOVING CITY HALL BACK TO OLD SITE

Committee Named To Study Construction at Marietta and Forsyth.

Appointment of a council committee to investigate feasibility of erecting a new city hall at Marietta and Forsyth streets and to sell the present hall on Mitchell street was authorized yesterday by city council.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, made the proposal, asserting that since public sentiment favors the city hall being more centrally located, now is the time to build one.

"We could erect a new building on the city's property, where the old city hall stood, for about $800,000," Gilliam explained. "I am perfectly confident we could sell the present building for $650,000 or more."

"With a PWA grant of 45 per cent of the $800,000 cost, we could easily finance the new building with the money from the sale of the present structure."

The old city hall site is now under option to Jesse Draper, Atlanta realtor, for $300,000. Efforts have been made to sell it over a period of six or eight years with no success.

"Putting the city hall back at Marietta and Forsyth would improve values in that vicinity and would provide a hall more accessible to the public," said Gilliam.

Council rejected Alderman Roy Callaway's proposal to refer the matter to the city-county public improvement committee, which is sponsoring a $30,000,000 improvement program.

Norman Foster and his wife, Sally Blane, had dinner with the Tones at a night club late last week. Foster said the meeting between Miss Crawford, who was their guest, and her husband was accidental.

Bus Fare Boost In State Is Denied By Commission

The application of half a dozen bus lines operating in Georgia to increase their passenger fares was denied yesterday by the Georgia Public Service Commission.

Application for an increase first was made by Southeastern Greyhound, Inc., last February, and later several others including Georgia Stages of Albany joined the case. Georgia Stages requested permission to advance fares 10 per cent.

In a busy session the commission also passed the following orders:

Dismissed rule nisi against five telephone companies which have been asked to show cause why $5,000 penalty suits should not be instituted against them for failure to file annual operations reports. The rule was dismissed in the cases of Effingham Telephone Co., at Marietta, Ga.; Gray Telephone Company, at Roswell; Georgia Telephone Company, at Braselton; Port Telephone Company, and Davisboro Telephone Company.

Denied application of D. L. Carter, doing business as Carter Motor Lines of Macon, for a Class "A" certificate to haul freight between Atlanta and Macon; also denied Carter's application for a similar certificate for a freight line between Hawkinsville and Columbus. The commission said the territories already were adequately served.

Granted a certificate to H. L. LaRoche and T. H. Lackman to haul petroleum products in Georgia for the Republic Oil Company, Cities Service and Sinclair Refining Company, of Savannah.

Denied petition of Southern Railway to discontinue its pickup and delivery service at Bowersville, Cannon, Gillsville, Martin, Plainsville, Hiram, Shannon, Maysville, Powder Springs and Sugar Valley.

Denied the Atlantic Coast Lines petition to discontinue its agency at Millwood.

Approved the Georgia Railroad's request to discontinue its agency at State Farm, Ga.

The commission also denied the Atlantic Coast Line's application to discontinue two passenger trains a day between Waycross and Brunswick.

Chairman Walter McDonald said the trains (Numbers 59 and 60) were "the only service left between the two points and that fact controlled the commission in making its decision."

WARE OFFICERS PRAISED. WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 1.—The sheriff's office of Ware county was commended today by Judge M. D. Dickerson in Ware county superior court, along with Solicitor General John Gibson and other county officers, for their diligent and effective work in criminal investigations during the past few months. Judge Dickerson paid special tribute to Walter E. Lee, clerk of court.

TOBACCO PRICES AVERAGE 27 CENTS

Rivers and George Wire Wallace Plea To Suspend Quotas.

By the Associated Press. A grower group's flat rejection of tobacco marketing quotas and renewed agitation for removal of all such restrictions yesterday accompanied incomplete reports showing an average of 27 cents a pound for the first week of leaf auctions.

A mass meeting of Candler county growers at Metter endorsed the county tobacco committee's action in holding up all allotment cards "to be reworked on a more equitable basis."

R. G. Daniel, owner of the Metter Advertiser, said the quotas were rejected because "they varied too widely between 300 pounds growers, ranging from 300 pounds to more than 1,000 pounds per acre." The growers passed a resolution asking an allotment of 800 pounds an acre for all growers.

$4,000,000 in Two Days. The preliminary reports from 41 of 56 warehouses tended to bear out estimates placing the first two days' returns at nearly $4,000,000, up substantially from the first two days of last year.

Senator George and Governor Rivers in separate communications asked Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to lift the marketing restrictions.

Tift county growers who received permanent quotas yesterday reported dissatisfaction over the amounts of tobacco they were permitted to sell. Four suits already have been filed attacking constitutionality of the quota plan at Valdosta, Moultrie, Hazlehurst and in Florida.

A group of growers met at Hazlehurst today and formed the Jeff Davis Farmers' Association for the purpose of "ending the purpose of lifting the marketing restrictions together in injunction proceedings against collection of the penalty tax on sale of leaf not covered by allotment cards."

L. R. Ursey was elected head of the association and J. I. Garrison was chosen secretary and treasurer. D. W. Linsan, Ed Spann and M. G. Walters were named to act with Ursey and Garrison as an executive committee in handling the injunction fight.

Preliminary reports to the State Department of Agriculture showed $3,181,000 paid for 11,840,000 pounds of tobacco.

This compares with the complete two-day report of 1937, when $3,248,275.02 was paid for 12,875,254 pounds, an average of 25.23.

Official Figures Today. Figures from 16 unreported warehouses were expected to swell the new totals beyond last year's figures, and unofficial advices from the markets indicated the

'Beauty' Solicitors Collect--and Vanish

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Jeffersonville ladies interested in adding to their beauty are now awaiting the return of two women who solicited funds for a permanent wave machine. The solicitors collected a dollar from each person interested in the purchase of the machine and subsequent establishment of a beauty parlor here. They were quite optimistic as the drive for funds began nearing its goal—and they haven't been seen since.

state average would be raised. Official figures will not be issued until today.

Senator George also asked Secretary Wallace to consider a cotton loan of "75 per cent parity price."

Both the senator and Governor Rivers asked permission for farmers to sell all tobacco raised on allotted acres if marketing restrictions were not lifted entirely.

Under the general farm program, growers limit the amount of land planted tobacco. Marketing quotas establish a further limit by fixing the amount any grower may sell without penalty, whether the crop is produced on allotted land or not.

The allotment of acres devoted to a particular farm crop is made as part of the general soil conservation program. Quotas were applied as an added restriction after a belt-wide referendum, which carried approval for the plan by a wide margin, although Georgians did not return a two-thirds vote required.

'Unfair Discrimination.' Rivers' telegram to Wallace said "our tobacco farmers deeply resent unfair discrimination to Georgia in provisions of agricultural adjustment act of 1933."

He added that "wide discretionary powers are vested in you and unless immediate relief is given to our farmers we face financial ruin. With all vigor I urge upon you the expediency of suspension of marketing quota for current crop season. Unless the marketing quota is entirely suspended for this crop season the tobacco growers by all means should be allowed to sell without penalty, all production on allotted acreage."

The Governor also said that "to contend otherwise is to unjustly penalize this state and our people for natural geographic and climatic advantages."

George Informs F. D. R. Senator George also directed copies of his communications to President Roosevelt, due August 10 at Pensacola, Fla., from an ocean cruise. He said weevil damage was heavy in Georgia and that in view of the reduction in acreage "our farmers are in sore need of a living price for this crop."

He wired: "Let me renew my urgent request submitted to you some weeks ago that the growers of flue-cured tobacco be permitted to sell all tobacco produced on the allotted acreage and that no penalty whatever be imposed upon any tobacco farmer who has complied with his acreage agreement. Prospect for cotton crop in Georgia unfavorable on account of weather and weevil damage, especially in the tobacco counties. To impose poundage allotments of 800 pounds per acre or less will work a serious injustice to our farmers. I again call attention to the fact that an amendment which I offered in the senate and which was rejected by the conference committee would allow the farmers to sell all tobacco produced on their allotted acreage without penalty or tax. Situation calls for immediate action."

Sales in the tobacco markets continued at the top pace permitted auctioneers. Prices remained in the same firm level as on opening day, averaging between 25 and 28 cents, unofficial figures indicated, and growers were crowding to market with their crop. More tobacco was reported waiting at all warehouses than could be handled in the day's sales.

The Valdosta and Moultrie attacks on quotas will be heard at Valdosta on August 10; the Hazlehurst suit will be heard the same day at Hazlehurst and the fourth suit will be heard by a Florida judge.

Growers operated the first two days under temporary quotas of 400 pounds to the acre for old growers and 300 for new growers and the first permanent quota cards appeared in the belt today.

Combined production in Florida and Georgia has been estimated at 25,000,000 pounds higher than the quotas allowed the two states. The quotas are proportionate shares of a national quota, divided among growers on a basis of past production records.

The penalty tax under protest is 50 per cent of the market price except on low grades bringing 6 cents or less, where the tax is a minimum of 3 cents a pound.

Protest meetings of growers were called in a number of the market centers today, and additional court attacks on the AAA plan are expected in the belt. In the court cases, taxes are imposed pending final decision, but affect only growers and warehousemen named directly as parties to the cases.

Remains of 3 Prehistoric Races Discovered at Site of Norris Dam

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(P)—The Smithsonian Institution disclosed today remains of three prehistoric Indian races had been rescued from the area now occupied by the lake behind Norris dam in the Tennessee valley.

Archeologists of the Institution had made explorations in the area long before the dam was built and recognized it as rich in Indian remains. When plans for the dam were announced they secured the assistance of laborers from the Civil Works Administration and Federal Emergency Relief Administration to make a thorough exploration under the direction of Major William S. Webb before the area was flooded.

CATAPULT PLANE ON RETURN TRIP

Ship Has 'Round-the-World' Passenger.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(P)—The German seaplane Nordwind, with Captain Hans Bertram, round-the-world air passenger, aboard as third pilot, was catapulted from the mother ship Freisenland at 6 p. m. (Atlanta time) today for its second return trip to Europe this season.

Captain Hans Werner Von Engel pointed his ship toward Horta in the Azores, where a five-hour stop will be made before continuing to Lisbon, Portugal.

Bertram, who left Berlin 17 days ago, will complete his journey from Lisbon in a German land plane. Planning to make the 24,000-mile world circuit in 19 days and 21 hours, Bertram hopes to become the first man to go around the globe on scheduled heavier-than-air planes only.

WAREHOUSE OPENS.

HULL CALLED MAN WITHOUT AN ENEMY

State Department Aide Pays Glowing Tribute to Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(UP) Stanley K. Hornbeck, one of the State Department's advisers on international political relations, reviewed the administration's foreign policy in a radio address to-night and concluded with a glowing eulogy of his chief, Secretary of State Hull, whom he called a man without an enemy.

The eulogy served to recall that Hull is receiving increasing mention as possible Democratic presidential timber in 1940 although Hornbeck refrained from any mention of domestic politics other than to say that even the secretary's "political opponents, although foes, are not enemies."

He said that Mr. Hull's personality and effective influence go "far beyond the organization of which he is the head" and added that he "has inspired in the people of his own country confidence in his department, confidence in its chief, and has won the confidence of governments and people of other countries."

"Loyal to his own chief, the President," Hornbeck said, "loyal to his party, literally giving his life to the service of his country, possessed of and preaching an idealistic yet thoroughly practical program and practicing what he preaches, the secretary of state... is doing everything in his power—and that is much—to make effective on behalf of the United States and toward peace, security and opportunity for all nations—the policy of good neighbor to which on March 4, 1933, the President dedicated this nation, and committed the administration."

blanket acquittal and five for conviction. They had been charged to bring in separate verdicts for each defendant.

Government attorneys asked immediately that a new trial be started within two weeks. Judge Ford refused to agree and set September 17 for a hearing at Lexington, Ky., to determine when retrial will begin.

Before discharging the jurors, Judge Ford thanked them for their services.

PRODUCING WORK ANIMALS IN GEORGIA

In view of the definite trend toward diversification on the farm in Georgia it is being recognized more and more that animal husbandry, to a large extent, has been neglected. Much, of course, has been done. Packing plants have been built. Creameries have been established. Stock has been gradually improved by the introduction of thoroughbred animals. Cattle raising for commercial purposes, as well as for domestic farm use, has made tremendous strides in the right direction. The good work should go on.

One branch of animal husbandry, however, has been largely overlooked—the breeding and raising of work animals. At present, horses and mules are more widely kept on the Georgia farm than any other class of livestock. For every dollar invested in meat and milk-producing animals, two dollars have gone into horses and mules. Practically all of the animals pulling plows and hauling crops in the state have been shipped in from other states. The purchase of these animals and, not infrequently, buying feed to keep them, has taken a large part of the farmers' annual income. It is estimated by competent authority that, in the majority of cases, every tenth cotton crop has gone to replace work animals essential in producing the crops. Another instance where Georgia farmers have not produced to the extent of their potentialities.

The reduction of cotton acreage in Georgia has released many acres of excellent land. Much of this could be successfully utilized as pasture lands, as well as for growing feed for raising workstock. Enormous sums of money could eventually be kept in the state which otherwise enrich professional breeders beyond the borders of the southern states.

It has been demonstrated by the department of animal husbandry of the College of Agriculture at Athens that horses and mules can be successfully raised in Georgia. Having given the matter a thorough, practical test in collaboration with the United States Department of Agriculture, the following statement has been made public:

The quality of animals, the size and cost of production, indicate that breeding and raising of workstock for replacement on Georgia farms is economically sound.

Until Georgia farmers, and those industries allied with farming, take full advantage of the opportunities at home, the people of the state will continue to pay tribute to producers of farm products in other states.

STYLE AND MARKET WEEK

Atlanta's merchants will hold the annual Style and Market Week, in conjunction with their fall festival, from August 15 to 19, inclusive. At that time the retailers of the southeast will be the honor guests of the manufacturers and distributors of the city. They will be feted and entertained through a series of programs of fascinating allure.

The primary purpose of the week, however, is to show merchants of the southeast that Atlanta offers as smart styles, as good values and as wide a variety of choice as any wholesale market. That this city, by reason of its proximity, is the ideal market in which retailers of the Atlanta territory may secure their stocks.

Thus the week has a twofold benefit. It benefits the visiting merchants, in making their marketing easier and less expensive, and it benefits the local manufacturers and wholesalers who sell thereby.

To those Atlantans who are directly interested neither in wholesale nor retail selling, the week brings opportunity for advance view of the styles that are to adorn the femininity of America during the coming fall and winter season.

Women who attend may go into raptures over those funny toy hats that are coming in, while men may go into spasms of laughter over the same millinery creations. Men and women alike may learn what new colors are to be fashionable and both may enjoy, together, the splendid entertainment provided.

Style and Market Week has come to be one of the really important events of Atlanta's year and it is growing in interest, importance and attendance as the seasons pass.

At Manhattan, Kan., an umpire razed the spectators, which is news in anybody's school of journalism.

THE CHURCH IN BONDS

The imprisonment of Pastor Martin Niemöller furnishes an excellent example of cruelty backfiring to the detriment of its perpetrators. It also demonstrates the truth of the saying that the "blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church."

Five months ago a special German court released the pastor who fought for religious freedom in the Reich and defied Hitler in so doing. Shortly after his release Niemöller was clapped into a concentration camp. Not daring to murder the pastor outright, Hitler's agents proceeded to mete out an existence such as to make death preferable to most men.

The pastor's name disappeared from dispatches from Germany. His enemies thought he had been forgotten, that their cruelty was their own, and not the world's, business. But Pastor Niemöller was not and is not forgotten. On the contrary, his name has become a symbol. The circumstances of his imprisonment—in which he is kept in a cell and denied virtually everything that makes life tolerable—have leaked out. Protests have come and thousands of letters to Berlin have asked his release. Demands for his liberation have also come from 42 deputations to the German government.

Personal friends of the pastor, as well as persons interested in justice and tolerance, have taken the dangerous step of circulating pamphlets about the Niemöller case. Naturally, the pamphlets are circulated privately. Some of them have made their way to this country. The pamphlets read, in part: "As long as Martin Niemöller is in the concentration camp, there is set up in our midst a signal, visible from afar, that the church of Jesus Christ is in bonds in Germany."

Hitler has not heard the last of the Niemöller case.

THE PUBLIC WATCH DOG

Most fascinating reading may be found in the review of work for June by the Federal Trade Commission. The stories told in this report, of efforts of the commission to protect the buying public against misrepresentation of goods on the part of the sellers, offer a cross-section of that mercantile underworld which always seeks to trap the unwary, on the outworn principle of "caveat emptor."

That there are so many firms and individuals who stoop to the unethical practices charged by the commission comes as a shock to those of us who are accustomed to dealing only with the local merchants we have known for years and whose advertising in local papers we believe utterly, because of past satisfactory experience.

The commission digs out those firms which, by shrewd wording of corporate name, by trade mark name on their products, or by sales trickery, seek to foist some imitation and synthetic product on the purchaser as the real thing.

There is the story in the report, for instance, of a seller of household appliances who delivers a different quality article than the sample shown and who tricks the purchaser into signing a sales contract by offering it as a mere receipt or temporary insurance form. There is the story of a so-called "health society" which makes flat misstatements about a couple of volumes of alleged health advice. There are a number of firms which make false representations to prospective agents about probable earnings.

An item of unusual interest concerns the word "Sheffield" as applied to silverware. One company which manufactures electroplated silverware is ordered to stop using the word "Sheffield" in its corporate name or in any manner which might imply its products were made by the Sheffield process which originated in England some 200 years ago. The Sheffield process involves the joining, under great pressure, of three sheets of different metal—the outer two silver and a baser metal between.

The Federal Trade Commission thus serves as a watch dog for all who buy. It does its best to protect the American public from fraud and trickery. The best way the public can cooperate is by turning a deaf ear to the unknown door-to-door canvasser and buying only from reputable local stores.

As was expected, Nazi leaders, found guilty in 15 minutes by a Long Island jury, have appealed. Pending same, they are out on bond.

Editorial of the Day

LEON HENDERSON'S AMERICAN CREDO

(From The Birmingham Age-Herald.)

Leon Henderson's recent outline of the basic assumptions of the American competitive system is so fine that it deserves the careful study of all who say they believe in economic and political freedom and are interested in improving the means and methods of strengthening it. These are the basic conceptions as seen by the New Deal economist, who repeated them in ridiculing description of himself as a "left-wing, radical planner."

1. That each individual at his own risk, was at liberty to take the action he considered most advantageous to himself.
2. That there would be universal freedom of contract among individuals.
3. That rewards would be in proportion to benefits supplied consumers in the forms of larger production, lowered prices, and new goods and services.
4. That the individual might retain gains as his private property.
5. That the shares of each contributor would be determined by prices, through mechanism of a free market, in which no seller or buyer could prevent free functioning.
6. That no long-term restriction would be placed upon the international flow of goods.
7. That the rewards for saving would be directly dependent upon the productivity of continuing loss of capital that had failed to produce consumer benefits.
8. That the alternative of working free land would be always available.
9. That the government would intervene only to compel all citizens to obey the rules.

Mr. Henderson still maintains that "the national policy which comes closest to validating these assumptions is the best possible policy for America."

It is important, it seems to us, to realize that these basic assumptions, with which we find ourselves in decided general accord, cannot be given effect automatically; that government, in order to give them validity and stability, must find ways of making them generally effective and satisfactory.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CABINET PURGE WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—One of the peren-nial moves to clean out the cabinet is now on foot. Every election year the President's friends and advisers of all shades of opinion urge him to hurl the incompetents, misfits and hacks from their high seats. This year is no exception. Indeed, the whole business is distinctly repetitious.

The necks being measured for the noose wear the usual labels—Roper, Cummings, Woodring and Swanson. And, as usual, the charges are that Roper, Cummings, Woodring and Swanson will continue to enjoy the pay, perquisites and pomp of their posts. This year's lynching party has an excellent new argument—that a coalition liberal cabinet must be got together in preparation for 1940. But there is nothing to show that the President has lost his old distaste for telling his subordinates the truth is up.

Since dawn of the New Deal, this presidential trait has been the despair of the most intelligent White House friends. So far as his official household is concerned, the President is like a lackadaisical bachelor, who can't face the strain of firing his cook even though she is a natural successor to Lucrezia Borgia.

HIGH NOTES To be sure, there is a good chance that Attorney General Homer S. Cummings may resign of his own volition. He has begun to talk of it again; has even mentioned it tentatively, it is understood, to the President himself. But the fact that the general is thinking of resigning is no assurance that he will do so.

Last time, about six months ago, he was quite positive about it, but he said that he wanted to "go out on a high note." The high note then was playing an important part in filling a large number of vacant judgeships. Now there is a vacancy to be filled on the supreme court, and the temptation to wait for this still "higher note" may well be his.

Because the areas in the Justice Department which he still controls are both inefficient and political, Cummings' departure is generally desired by the men around the President. Because he is an ally of the democracy's Garner-Farley wing, his departure is longed for with real passion by the more ardent New Dealers. He is an amiable and canny old fellow, but the New Dealers would sell at least a piece of their souls to see him replaced by Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson.

Another good contender for the place is Joseph B. Keenan, the rotund, genial, astute fellow who is officially Cummings' assistant, and unofficially the new political agent of the White House. But the men around the President, and, many think, the President himself, have not lost hope of making Jackson the President's successor. Thus Jackson is the better bet.

GLUE SMEARERS Cummings has long played with the idea of getting out. As for Daniel Calhoun Roper, Harry H. Woodring and Claude Swanson, they are still very busy smearing glue on their respective seats at the Commerce Department, War Department and Navy Department. There is no enemy toward Swanson. His resignation is desired only because, for some time, he has been too ill to do his job. If he goes, Assistant Secretary Charles Edison, son of the inventor, is likely to succeed him.

Getting Dan Roper would probably give the members of the cabinet lynching party the most pleasure. His department has been allowed to become an every wilderness of politics and incompetence, in the middle of which is Uncle Dan himself, hopefully repeating that "all is for the best in this best of possible worlds." The scheme is to give Roper's place to a liberal Catholic, like Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, or to a leading La Follette Progressive.

As for Harry Woodring, he is a cheerful little Kansas politician, whose chief assets are a pretty wife and a generous brood of healthy children. If the lynchers have their way, he will be replaced by his assistant secretary, Louis Johnson, loved by the veterans as a former Legion commander and by the ardent New Dealers because he has had the sense to play in with them.

SENSE AND INERTIA The motives of the lynching party are eminently sensible. They want to take the liberal-conservative struggle in 1940 with a strong lineup. But the odds are heavily against them, and on the presidential inertia. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

No Sense Of Humor.

Another example of alleged humor in the hinterlands as reported by Charlie Williams. Charlie, this time, speaks of amours and practical jokes and the strange failure of the victim to quite understand the subtle wit of the incident. Here is the story: "The fellow Bryce Harvey thought he was a woman-killer so me and Tom Harris thought we would fix him up. We began telling him about this good-looking girl that lived over beyond Snakes Creek and how she told us she'd like to meet with him. He got him all stirred up about how pretty she was and how crazy she was to meet him and then the next Sunday Tom and me drove over to his house and says we had seen this girl and she wanted him to come and live with her house and that night, but he sure and not make her father mad or let him know nothing about it because he didn't like her to have dates."

A Shotgun
In the Dark.

Tom and me, we went over to this house which was a vacant house set back a good ways from the road about sundown and Tom and I went in and lit a lamp and turned it low and set his shotgun behind the door and I hid out in the bushes across the field. Well, in about half an hour Bryce came driving up in his Lizzie and stepped out all dolled up and walked up to the house and knocked at her house and Tom stepped out in the shadows where it was dark and says in a rough voice what does he want. So, Bryce asks is this where Miss Eva Simmons lives and Tom says yes, but she ain't at home and what does he want with her. Bryce, he says he has got date with her and she starts cussing and raising Cain about strangers coming to see his girl and he reaches back in the house and brings out his shotgun and lets her off in the air.

I never did see anybody take off like this fellow Bryce ran. He just went zip-zip and was out of sight in no time. I flopped down in the bushes and laughed till I hurt and Tom lay down on the porch and haw-hawed till he was so weak he couldn't laugh no more. After a while we hollered for Bryce to come on back, but he didn't and he said he had got in his car and I got in Bryce's and we started for home because we figured he would be there and was afraid to come back for his car. We had drove about three miles when I noticed this fellow running ahead in the road and I speeded up and seen it was Bryce so I stopped.

Clothes Torn And All Wet.

He was still all-fired scared and his clothes was tore where he had lit out through a bobwire fence and was all wet where he had fell in the creek. He got in and I drove him home and when we got there he was kind of collected and he asked me what I was doing in his car, so I told him I had got in it so he could laugh, too. But somehow he hasn't got much of a sense of humor and he didn't think it was funny at all. Matter of fact, he got mad and wanted to fight and I had to kind of push him around. Now, what can you do with a fellow like that?

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Saturday, August 2, 1913:

"Tower City, Pa.—Eighteen men were killed and two seriously injured in the East Brookside mine of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company, near here, in a double explosion of what is believed to have been dynamite and gas. Two blasts occurred, the first killing 13 men, and the other killing five men."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Thursday, August 2, 1868:

"The melon-growers of south Georgia, aroused thereby by the exorbitant freight rates of the season now closing, have resolved upon concert of action in order to gain their rights for the future. They have resolved upon a general convention to be held in Thomasville on the 15th of August."

GOOD MORNING

MULES.

"When are you going to write something else about mules?" asks a good friend. Well, I would write more often about mules, but I was afraid there were not so many people who would be interested. I guess we would all be more interested in mules if we realized how dependent we are upon them.

I was reading a very interesting article the other day in which Wayne Dinsmore, executive secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, said the shortage of mules in this country presents one of our very real economic problems. He explains that not until 1939 can we hope to see as many mules produced as naturally die off each year. That the demand then will continue much greater than the supply and we may expect high prices to prevail for yet several years.

Mr. Dinsmore says that in the early days of the depression people killed many livestock because they didn't see any hope of ever needing them again and in those days many jacks and Jennets were allowed to perish. Now we are paying the price of that folly. He further explains that the war in Spain has cut us off from one of our main sources of supply for jacks.

Did you know that the life span of a mule is greater than that of a horse? The average life of a mule is 18 years and that of a horse 15 years. Mules have more sense than horses in the matter of eating—they will not overeat. Mr. Dinsmore says something in his article that I had never thought of, and yet every boy raised on the farm knows it is true, that mules are friendlier than horses. Some will question this statement, but I believe it will stand the test. Don't get me wrong, please. I am not turning my back on horses—I am writing about mules.

I would be afraid to get very close to a man who didn't like a mule.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Terrible NEW YORK, Aug. 1. Art Work with the beauty of the hills of San Francisco will blanch with horror at the drawings of the monster—and monstrous—statue of Saint Francis of Assisi with which Christmas Tree Point is threatened in the name of art by the Works Progress Administration. This tombstone cutter's nightmare will rise 156 feet above a 35-foot base and, although it may one day frighten off a Japanese armada, civilization was better served should some dear foe sail close enough one day to blow it down.

The subject of God-awful statuary in public places is to the fore in New York just now, thanks to the rather reckless observation of Robert Moses, our park commissioner, that this city has some of the worst in the world. Mr. Moses has some interesting entries for a competition of this kind, to be sure, but when he challenges the world he takes in too much territory.

London has statues in a hundred unexpected little public squares, erected in honor of departed aldermen, lawyers and shipowners that make even our figure of Balto, the Eskimo dog, look as if the Venus de Milo should have him on a leash, but Mr. Moses need not cross salt water to find worse than his worst. The Masonic memorial, the dreadful heap of children's spelling blocks outside Washington, will out-awful the most appalling hunk of iron-mongery in all New York, including the outlying metropolitan district, and the figure symbolizing the art of the moving pictures, with which it is customary to honor genius in Hollywood once a year will stand him off, at least.

Totem Pole But if this statue of St. Francis of Assisi is carried through to completion (an old newspaper phrase which I could not defend to save my life) the championship of the world will belong to San Francisco beyond challenge by the totem poles of Alaska or even the atrocious and laundry list carvings that used to find seriocomic sponsorship in Frank Crocominshild's vanity fair.

It is a figure with the conventionalized head of the 1910 model of family doctor, with a pointed beard, inclosed in an aviator's helmet, and having, beneath the chin, a sort of bib or drool cloth. The hands are upraised in the standard posture of the guest of honor at a stickup and the figure then declines, round, rigid as a concrete pipe and innocent of fold or human line, to the waist, where it disappears into a barrel extending to the base.

"The New York Times reports, on the authority of Archbishop John J. Mitty, of San Francisco, that the design is the result of deep study of serious artists, although they are great wags, and they sometimes palm off roughness on laymen in the guise of solemn effort. If Mr. Bufano was kidding and this design was intended to depict the taxpayer who will have to dig up $50,000 of WPA money to pay for his joke, then I think I see the symbolism."

Taxpayer The taxpayer is standing in his bar, having already lost his pants to Henry Morganthau's implacables, and holds his hands upflanked from force of habit. He has a brand. And a label. It will be marketed to the nation as a Georgia product.

"Two packing houses have told me," said the Macon publisher, they are shipping together 160,000 pounds of Georgia hams each week to Virginia. "They want the peanut ham up there because of its flavor. They get it for about 15 cents the pound and it comes back to Georgia where we pay 75 cents for it. This co-operative, which will seek to sell Georgia products to the nation and more particularly to the people of Georgia, is starting with Georgia hams."

At the all-Georgia products luncheon the ham disappeared quickly. There were tremendous platters of fried chicken, string beans with good big pieces of cured side meat in them; fried corn, okra and tomatoes; butter beans and—as desert—watermelon, ice cream and toasted pound cake.

$70,000,000 For Food We Could Grow The marketing is the big problem. It is an old story in Georgia and the south. Until the farmer can sell what he grows he can't prosper. The co-operatives which take farm products are the most likely answer.

Georgia pays out in taxes to the various governments about $90,000,000. Georgia pays out to other states about $70,000,000 for livestock and food. The division is about $40,000,000 for livestock and

The Ass in the Lion's Skin Still Had the Bray of an Ass

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Some years ago, when men's dress shirts had detachable collars and a colored shirt was a work shirt, a certain young man, who had a wife and baby to support, robbed his employer in order to "live like a gentleman," and shot himself when police officers came to get him.

About a year before that tragic ending, the young man came into my office to describe a political meeting he had attended. The state had been split into bitter factions by the campaign methods of a demagogue who appealed only to the poor. He was so unfair, unreasonable and reckless that people of substance mistrusted and hated him.

The young man knew nothing about politics, but with the poor on one side and the rich on the other, he attached himself to the rich as naturally as a fly goes to molasses.

At the political meeting, he had given more attention to the demagogue's followers than to his speech. And now he revealed the narrowness of his pathetic, snobbish little soul, when he said in the venomous scorn: "Why, I'll bet there wasn't a dozen white collars in the crowd!"

The same faulty logic that made him despise all men in work shirts, and eventually made him a thief and a suicide, fooled better and wiser men all through the ages.

Before the time of Pasteur, learned men believed and taught that flies developed spontaneously in the bodies of dead animals. They had seen swarms of flies leaving such bodies; obviously nobody placed them there. Therefore, given a carcass, they just happened without a cause. Any smart man could figure it out when he saw it with his own eyes.

So the foolish young man judged by what he saw and never once thought of looking deeper. He knew men in white collars who were well-bred, upright and blameless gentlemen. Therefore, the way to be a gentleman was to wear a white collar. It never occurred to the poor kid that a gentleman must be white on the inside. The idea that appearance is more important than reality seems characteristic of our times. Chastity isn't important if you keep out of trouble; knowledge isn't necessary if you can get a diploma without it; debt and insolvency don't matter if you call it helping the needy; even conquest in violation of treaties is blameless if you don't call it war.

Thus, in plain words, we kid ourselves and get by; but one needn't be very smart to realize that pretty makeup won't save one whose vitals are gnawed by disease.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

Georgia Hams
With a Virginia
Accent

Two packing firms in Georgia are shipping a combined total of 160,000 pounds of Georgia ham to Virginia each week.

After a processing there they come back with a special label and are sold as Virginia cured hams at 75 cents per pound. The Georgia farmer sells them for 15 cents a pound. Probably other packing houses are supplying the demand from Virginia for Georgia peanut hams which come back with a Virginia "accent" and a broad "A" price.

It was Sunday afternoon at Macon that we were talking about hams. It was after a newspaper meeting. W. T. Anderson, of the Telegraph, was to escort his guests to the home of his brother, P. T. Anderson, Sr., for lunch. There was to be a special cured Georgia ham on the menu. He talked for 20 minutes about a ham which had been smoked 90 days.

It was the product of a new Georgia enterprise. A co-operative has been formed and the farmer members will bring in graded, standard hams to the co-operative. They will receive the prevailing price. At the end of the year the members will receive a check as their share of the dividend. It will be non-profit making. It will provide a market for the farmer members.

W. T. Anderson lectured his guests on the virtues of this Georgia peanut, smoked cured ham. It has a brand. And a label. It will be marketed to the nation as a Georgia product.

"Two packing houses have told me," said the Macon publisher, they are shipping together 160,000 pounds of Georgia hams each week to Virginia. "They want the peanut ham up there because of its flavor. THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"If a man were permitted to make all the ballads, he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

It seems to us that this chap, O'Daniel, governor-designate of Texas, isn't being looked at from the proper angle. We, for one, can forgive him any wrong stands he may take on political and economic questions because of the superior importance of a question on which he has taken an eternally right stand. The spoiler of this day, the demoralizer, the threat to all its civilization, is not taxes or demagoguery or the boll weevil or the lunatic fringe; or the lions of the laissez faire. It is the music dished out to us in innocent masses. Specifically it is swing and jazz. Now comes Mr. O'Daniel, with his hillbilly musicians, to win a great victory for music that has lilt, melody, tune, sanity, sincerity, about it.

Contemporary observers may attach no great import to this musical issue but historians may write it supreme. Mountain music isn't great music but it is genuine. It has a heart and a sense of humor. It is healthy. It represents a better than swing and jazz, and inspires nobler emotions. The centuries to come, in Texas and elsewhere, may be more influenced by the music-making of Mr. O'Daniel than by anybody's law-making.

Earnestly, though, we suggest that he get his legislature to pass a law against the crooners who are beginning to creep into hill-billy bands. Crooners belong in the other camp, the jazz and swing camp. They are as incongruous and offensive when they elbow their way into mountain music as a Hollywood-southern accent in Atlanta. Crooners, like jazz artists, die hard but the time has come to be stern with them.

Back to print recently have come so many of the anti-New Deal stories printed first in 1934 and 1935, that we expect to read any day now of the psychiatrist at heaven's gate who was hurried in for professional consultation because "the Lord is walking around talking to Himself—He thinks He's Franklin D. Roosevelt."

With his "A Southerner Discovers the South," Jonathan Daniels has produced a substantial book, but his spirit is even more important than its substance, in our opinion. It is the cheerfully questioning and forgiving spirit of a cosmopolitan gentleman who seems to see all and be defeated by nothing. One gathers that the world might come to an end, that the pit from pole to pole might yawn, that the ice age might return or the insect world win over the world of anthropoids, and that Jonathan would be observant, regretful, and helpful as he could, but never tearful, pious or dull. A southerner has discovered the south, and the south it seems to us, has discovered a southerner. One whose tribe here needs to be increased. Cavaliers can do as much as Puritans for this region. The long face and the eye lifted heavenward are all right, but gay-hearted crusaders like Mr. Daniels are so much easier to follow.

We don't know much about Tennessee politics and we have never met Boss E. H. Crump, of Memphis. But it seems to us that if Mr. Crump should ever lose out in politics there is a place for him in the field of fervent letters. Listen to him in a recent passing reference to Governor Browning: "In the art galleries in Paris, there are 27 pictures of Judas Iscariot. None look alike, but all resemble Gordon Browning."

A.P. GIVEN PRAISE BY MACON EDITOR

Telegraph Publisher Lauds News Organization.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 1.—"The AP is the most truthful and forward-looking news organization the world has ever known," W. T. Anderson, editor and publisher of the Macon Telegraph and News, told the Associated Press Club of Georgia at its annual meeting here yesterday.

W. F. Caldwell, southern news editor of Atlanta, declared the AP is strictly a factual news reporting organization.

Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, and a director of the Associated Press, brought greetings to the membership from Robert McLean of the Philadelphia Bulletin, president of the Associated Press, and from Kent Cooper, general manager.

The Dublin Courier-Herald and the Waycross Journal-Herald were welcomed as new members.

storming" trips throughout Georgia for several years.

Ballard, 30, was one of the most popular mechanics working at Candler field.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Ballard, of Griffin, he was a nephew of the famous late Doug Davis, who several times won fame in the National Air Races at Cleveland, Ohio. Davis was killed several years ago in a plane at the National Air Races.

Mr. Ballard worked under him at Candler field until Davis' death. During the last few years, he has been counted by officials as being one of the most valuable aviation mechanics in the south. He was noted as a flier of private planes, too, friends said yesterday.

Member of Baptist Church.

A member of the First Baptist church of Hapeville, he was married to the former Miss Evelyn Thomas, whose father, George H. A. Thomas, is owner of the Black Rock Country Club.

Surviving, besides the parents and his wife and child, are six brothers, John H. and Troy Ballard, of Atlanta, and Billy, Ross, C. F. and Melville Ballard, of Griffin.

Hammett, 27 years old, was operator of a filling station at Washington street and Trinity avenue in Atlanta. He resided with his wife at 3698 Union avenue, in Hapeville.

A native of Hapeville, he had lived there all his life with the exception of a year he spent in Pensacola, Fla.

Surviving, besides his wife, are his mother, Mrs. Lucy Hammett; three sisters, Misses Lucille, Mildred and Marylucy Hammett, and one brother, Walter Hammett, all of Hapeville.

Funeral services also will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

ROBERT A. ROGERS, 80, DIES AT HOSPITAL 48

Robert A. Rogers, 80, a major in the Spanish-American War, died yesterday morning at Base Hospital 48 after a long illness. He resided at 577 Park drive, N. E.

Surviving are his wife, Sanderson, and four children: Sanderson, Jr., of Atlanta; Sanderson, of Condon, where funeral services and burial will be held today.

TRAIN TOLL 30 TO 40.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The list of dead from Saturday's excursion train wreck was revised downward tonight by railway authorities who said the number of victims probably would number between 30 and 40 instead of the 52 as first reported.

Showers, Clouds Forecast Today; Rainfall Is Short

Showers and cloudy weather were forecast for Atlanta today by the United States Weather Bureau. Temperature extremes were expected to range between a minimum of 70 degrees and a maximum of 88 degrees. Extremes yesterday were 69 and 85 degrees, unusually extended period of rainfall during the latter part of July there was a deficiency of 1.50 inches, according to the monthly report of George W. Minding, meteorologist. The precipitation for the month measured 3.15 inches, as compared with the normal rainfall of 4.65 inches. The frequent rainfall during the last part of the month gave the ground an abundance of moisture, according to the weatherman.

Significant is the fact that it rained for 10 consecutive days, from July 19 to July 28, inclusive, the precipitation ranging from .85 of an inch on July 23 to .01 of an inch on July 28.

The average temperature for July was 78.2 degrees, according to the report, the normal average for the month being 78.1 degrees.

HUGE BATTLE RAGES ALONG THE YANGTZE

Japanese Report Defeat of Eight Chinese Divisions Since July 23.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—One of the biggest battles of the Chinese-Japanese war in central China appeared to be under way today on both sides of the Yangtze river in the vicinity of Kiukiang, 135 miles downriver from Hankow.

The Japanese, whose forces are driving up the Yangtze toward the Chinese provisional capital, late last night said they had defeated eight Chinese divisions south of the river since July 23, date of the beginning of an offensive about Kiukiang.

Kiukiang fell on the 26th. Until last night the Japanese had reported encountering and defeating only three Chinese divisions.

Despite large-scale fighting in which Japan's combined land, naval and air forces hammered at the Chinese defenders, the Japanese admitted a fierce conflict still was continuing south of Kiukiang, with the Chinese line unbroken.

A Japanese spokesman said the Chinese were throwing troops from Hankow into the Kiukiang battle, "hoping to stave off the Japanese thrust into Hankow but simultaneously weakening defenses about Hankow and vicinity."

The Japanese said their forces were pushing forward north of the river in the Kiukiang area, but they admitted gains were small. They said the principal struggle in that sector was northwest of Taihu, near the western border of Anhwei province.

GULF RAINS SOAK ARRIVING TROOPS

Over 26,000 Men Slosh Around in Mississippi Mud.

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, DESOTO NATIONAL FOREST, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The scent of battle grew sharper today as troops arrived by trainloads in downpours of rain to take positions for Uncle Sam's most elaborate war games. They stepped from coaches into slushy mud.

Nearly 12,000 men, composing the national guard units of most southern states, encamped today at various points in this heavily wooded area bordering the Gulf coast.

It was the largest single day's arrival of soldiers since the army began concentrating troops in southwest Mississippi for the maneuvers. All of the force of more than 26,000 men, except a few small detachments due tomorrow, had arrived tonight.

The weather failed to dampen the spirits of the incoming troops. Those here several days kept busy digging trenches around tents and mending leaking canvas. Three cases of appendicitis were diagnosed among a dozen taken to a Biloxi hospital.

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the United States third army, arrived today.

D. W. CLOWER RITES AT MT. PLEASANT

Henry County Pioneer To Be Buried Today.

HAMPTON, Ga., Aug. 1.—Funeral services for D. W. Clower, 83, pioneer Henry county resident who died at his home near here yesterday afternoon, will be held at 2 o'clock (central standard time) tomorrow afternoon at the Mount Pleasant church with the Rev. J. E. Holbrook officiating.

Survivors include the wife; two daughters, Mrs. Alba Little and Miss Carrie Clower, of Hampton; three sons, E. C. and C. C. Clower, of Atlanta, and D. W. Clower Jr., of Hampton, and a brother, S. T. Clower, of Hampton.

FARMERS WARNED AS TO WET COTTON

Terrell Agent Tells of Difficulty in Ginning Damp Staple.

DAWSON, Ga., Aug. 1.—Following the almost continuous Terrell county and adjacent sections during the past two weeks, County Agricultural Agent Dallas Spurlock, of Terrell county, has addressed a warning to farmers.

Spurlock in a letter points out significant facts regarding the ginning of cotton, and the variance in grading due to the condition of the staple. His letter says in part:

"Ginners, without an exception, have told me that cotton brought to them in a damp or wet condition is extremely difficult to gin and that the grade is lowered from one to three or more points. This difference in grades ranges in price from one-half cent to sometimes more than three cents a pound.

"Cotton should not be picked until it is dry on the stalk. It is a problem to dry cotton when picked and water-packed. If cotton is wet or damp, it should be spread in a sheltered place and moved or stirred for several days before attempting to gin it. This will usually improve the physical condition of the cotton, makes it easier to gin and, therefore, the staple will command a higher price when sold.

"Too much emphasis cannot be placed on caring for cottonseed for next year's planting. Seed germination is destroyed by heating. Your next year's cotton stand will depend on the quality of seed you plant. The stand of cotton you obtain will determine largely the yield and the yield per acre will largely determine the profit or loss; therefore, you cannot afford not to select planting seed with the utmost care."

ARAB SLAUGHTER SLAIN AT JERUSALEM GATE

Six Hurt When Bombs Explode at Haifa.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 1.—(UP)—An Arab detective sergeant of the supernumerary police was shot dead at Jaffa gate here today and three bombs exploded at Haifa, injuring six Arabs.

The death sentence of Mordecai Schwartz, Jewish supernumerary constable, was confirmed by Sir Harold MacMichael, British high commissioner.

Schwartz was sentenced to death January 29 by the criminal court at Jerusalem for murdering an Arab constable, Mustapha Khoury, at Athlit. The privy council refused an appeal on July 2.

A Jewish supernumerary constable was wounded when an American-owned stone quarry south of Jerusalem was fired on by snipers.

Professor Disappears From Liner After Seaman Wrests Wife Away

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Robert Moore Duncan, 35, professor of political science at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., disappeared at sea from the French liner Normandie Sunday night, ship's officers reported today when the liner docked here. His wife, Alice, 36, was in the ship's hospital suffering cuts and bruises on her head and face.

The Normandie's chief purser, Henry Villar, said:

"Just before midnight Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were walking on the boat deck on the starboard side. At a point just beneath the bridge they stopped and began an argument."

"Duncan" grabbed his wife by the throat and hit her several times over the head," the purser continued, "and attempted to throw her over the side."

The purser said Joseph Marie Troward, a seaman on duty on the bridge, heard the argument and intervened in time to tear Mrs. Duncan away from her husband.

"He carried her to a companionway, put her down and then went back to see about Duncan," Villar said, "but he had disappeared."

"When Mrs. Duncan was revived the first thing she said was, 'Get my husband. He is going to commit suicide.' We organized search parties, but he could not be found."

WALKER FARMERS WILL GET $40,000

Benefits From 1938 Program May Total $110,000.

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Approximately 1,200 checks totaling $40,000 will have been paid to Walker county farmers in the 1937 farm program. The benefits to be received from the 1938 program will probably be around $110,000.

This is due to the fact that in 1937 many of the farmers planted cotton heavily, thus reducing their checks, and many more farmers are co-operating this year than in 1937.

TWIGGS CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND MEETING

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Mary C. Bennett, home demonstration agent, stated today that a number of club members from Twiggs county would attend the annual Farm and Home Week held at the state university at Athens August 9-12.

Among those who will accompany Mrs. Bennett are Mrs. J. W. Bennett and Mrs. Bunyan Holliday, from the Prospect club; Mrs. Lawrence Meadows and Mrs. Mat Davis, from the Rainbow club; Mrs. W. G. Mercer, from Williams club, and Mrs. Jim Hall and Mrs. Lizzie Mae Crosby, from Crosby club.

N. Y. TRUST FIRM ROBBED OF $50,250

4 Men Flee in Auto After Daring Holdup.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A branch of the Banco Di Napoli Trust Company in the crowded Pushcart market district of lower Manhattan was robbed of $50,250 in cash today by four men.

They fled in an automobile after threatening 14 customers and nine employees.

Two of the robbers stalked into the railed enclosure of Joseph Salvo, manager of the branch, while the two others shepherded the customers and employees.

From the cage of Peter Cocuzza, the cashier, they took a burlap bag which contained $50,000. Then they scooped $250 from the cash drawer.

MRS. MELVIN WILLIAMS DIES AT RESIDENCE

Mrs. Melvin R. Williams, 34, of 1110 North Highland avenue, N. E., died at her home yesterday afternoon after a brief illness. She was a member of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church.

Surviving are her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bevan, of Knoxville, Tenn.; a sister, Miss Edith Bevan, of Knoxville, and a brother, James J. Bevan, of Little Rock, Ark.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

HANCOCK AND GLASCOCK COUNTIES FIGHT MALNUTRITION

HEALTH OFFICIALS, CHILDREN'S BUREAU PUSHING PROGRAM

Federal Funds Are Used in Effort To Have Stronger, Happier Families.

By FRANK DRAKE, Constitution Staff Writer.

SPARTA, Ga., Aug. 1.—A living picture of Georgia in the future, when bright-eyed, healthy, normal children and adults will make up the state's population, is being drawn here in Hancock and Glascock counties.

This picture is the experiment the state health department and the children's bureau of the department of labor are conducting in these two counties over a period of years in an effort to eliminate malnutrition—under-nourishment of the bodies of boys and girls and men and women.

A concentrated war is being waged here against inadequate diets. All forces, public health officials, teachers, vocational instructors, farm agents and home demonstration agents, have combined their efforts to wipe out malnutrition.

Important to Georgia.

This warfare is described as of utmost importance to Georgia. It is so important the federal government is putting up the funds to pay the salaries of the workers who are teaching the children of Hancock and Glascock counties what to eat to make their bodies healthy and strong, it was reported.

From the results already shown in these two counties in the two years the project has been under way, elimination of malnutrition in Georgia's children will be of inestimable value — it would truly make the state great, say health officials.

Hancock and Glascock counties are not unusual in Georgia. The conditions therein probably reflect the average for the state. But in these two counties it was found two years ago that fully one-third of the children of school age were definitely undernourished.

Medical Survey.

A medical survey showed up the numerous physical defects of the 1,804 school children in both counties. Teeth were decayed, many children suffered from enlarged thyroid glands caused by a lack of iodine. Others had poor posture caused by lack of a proper diet, while many were overweight or under-weight.

A comprehensive health program, directed now by Dr. R. B. Griffin, of the state health department, has brought the following results in two years:

Teachers report the school children receiving proper food for their growing bodies are better behaved.

The children are in better health and are absent from school fewer times for illness.

They do better work in their studies and many teachers say many of their former "poor students" are above the average now.

This experiment does not start and end with children of school age, however.

Prenatal Care.

It begins with prenatal care for mothers and its indirect end is the economic and physical factor of farmers here producing and consuming better food.

Parents of these school children used to buy most of their food in the stores. Now they are raising much of it on their farms and in their gardens. The farm agents urge the farmers to grow as many vegetables as they can to help make their farms self-sufficient.

And, because children are eating better food at the schools, parents are encouraged to provide a greater variety of food at home.

Thus, the adults of Hancock and Glascock are benefiting from what the children learn, too.

"I do not have the figures on the number of gardens that have been planted as the result of this program, but I know there are a great many," said Dr. Griffin.

In connection with the fight on malnutrition, the program looks first to the beginning of under-nourishment—that of the prenatal child.

Clinics have been established for babies and preschool age children in virtually every community in these two counties. Pregnant mothers come every week or every month to these clinics, where Dr. Paul R. Ensign examines them and advises as to the proper diet for motherhood.

Medical Advice Given.

When the babies are born, they are brought to the clinics every month as they grow up and the doctors tell the mothers what to feed them to make strong bones and fine bodies. Every type of medical advice is given to keep these babies in good health.

After the children reach school age, they are regularly examined in the schools and defects are pointed out for correction.

This constant supervision for two years has produced good results and teachers and parents testify to it.

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, head of the state health department, which sponsors the mal-nutrition study, is just beginning another experiment in connection with the pro-

Sleep should be in a quiet place in comfortable garments at regular periods.

Babies who visit Hancock county's health clinic get a break in life. Here Mrs. M. N. Moore, of Sparta, watches while Mrs. Eudelle Trawick, the nurse, administers a bath to her 10-month-old son, Neal. Mrs. Trawick teaches Hancock county mothers how to handle and care for their babies. Such scenes as this occur daily as a part of the project to eliminate malnutrition in Hancock and Glascock counties. And do the children like it! Look at pleased expression on this youngster's face.

A bevy of Sparta beauties show what is resulting from the Hancock and Glascock county health program. In their hands they hold canned peaches and tomatoes which will be fed to school children next winter in the war to eliminate malnutrition. Left to right, they are Anne Berry, Alberta Dunn, Irene Cook, Irene Pound, Juanita Burgamy and Marian Stewart, all members of the 4-H Clubs of Hancock county. The vegetables and fruits they hold were canned in the plant operated by the vocational department of the Sparta High school.

Here is Dr. R. B. Griffin, director of the Hancock and Glascock county health project, examining tomato plants in a community garden at Warren's Chapel. This is a fall garden and by September there will be plenty of red, juicy tomatoes for school children to eat.

The difference between a well-nourished and an undernourished child? Dr. Paul R. Ensign is examining two nine-year-old boys. Next to the doctor is Adair Harris, whose diet has been balanced, producing a sturdy body. On the right is Talmadge Evans Walker, whose posture is bad because he has not eaten the proper foods to supply him with sufficient energy.

And this is a close-up of Mr. Neal Moore, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. N. Moore, of Sparta. Neal is 10 months old, weighs 22 pounds and has a tooth. Doctors and nurses at the Hancock health clinic say they've seldom seen as perfect a specimen of young manhood.

Grand Jury Upheld in Pennsylvania

Judge Says Solons Can't Stop Court Inquiry.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Judge Paul N. Schaeffer denied the Pennsylvania legislature today the right to suspend a grand jury investigation of charges against Governor Earle and other Democratic leaders.

Judge Schaeffer upheld the general assembly's authority to conduct its own investigation—but said it should not interfere with the court inquiry starting here next Monday.

The Reading jurist, assigned to the grand jury case by the state supreme court, impounded all evidence in possession of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley. He ordered Shelley and witnesses under subpoena for the grand jury not to appear before the legislature until after the court investigation.

Planes Shell Towns. The Russian planes first appeared over Changkung at about 2:30 p. m. after which five Soviet heavy bombers flew over the Korean village of Kojo and two over Sozan. Both these towns had been attacked Sunday. One plane flew over Suiryo.

The planes dropped bombs and then machine-gunned Japanese positions.

A second attack was made on Changkung toward sunset, after which the Russian bombers crossed the Tumen river and bombed the Japanese railway near Kimsioyo and a bridge near Keiko.

All the attacks resulted in slight damage," the communiqué said.

War Minister General Seishiro Itagaki and Foreign Minister General K. Ugaki were in conference throughout Monday morning and were joined by Prince Konoye when he returned from his mountain villa in Karuzawa last night.

A second attack was made on Changkung toward sunset, after which the Russian bombers crossed the Tumen river and bombed the Japanese railway near Kimsioyo and a bridge near Keiko.

All the attacks resulted in slight damage," the communiqué said.

War Minister General Seishiro Itagaki and Foreign Minister General K. Ugaki were in conference throughout Monday morning and were joined by Prince Konoye when he returned from his mountain villa in Karuzawa last night.

Here is Dr. R. B. Griffin, director of the Hancock and Glascock county health project, examining tomato plants in a community garden at Warren's Chapel. This is a fall garden and by September there will be plenty of red, juicy tomatoes for school children to eat.

The difference between a well-nourished and an undernourished child? Dr. Paul R. Ensign is examining two nine-year-old boys. Next to the doctor is Adair Harris, whose diet has been balanced, producing a sturdy body. On the right is Talmadge Evans Walker, whose posture is bad because he has not eaten the proper foods to supply him with sufficient energy.

MAINE JURY IS SET FOR MURDER TRIAL

State's Attorney Today Will Outline Strangest of Criminal Cases.

SOUTH PARIS, Maine, Aug. 1. (AP)—A jury was impaneled today to try Francis M. Carroll for the garrotting murder to which a boy friend of his daughter, Barbara, 18, confessed and went to prison as a "lifer."

Judge William H. Fisher adjourned court until tomorrow, when the state was to outline its evidence in one of the strangest cases in Maine criminal jurisprudence.

Paul N. Dwyer, who pleaded guilty eight months ago to strangling Dr. James G. Littlefield, was brought from prison today, ready to play the role of star witness against the 43-year-old former deputy sheriff.

Dwyer confessed that a disparaging remark about "his girl" by the kindly "Doctor Jim" angered him to murder, and that he later slew the physician's wife, Lydia, and carried both bodies on a grewsome "death tour" ending in North Arlington, N. J., late last October.

He never was tried for the woman's death.

The motive is said to be Littlefield's possession of a letter containing information "detrimental to Carroll."

THEATER—"Aunt Jerushy on the Warpath"

A rural farce by Lieutenant Beale Cormack, the same prolific playwright who wrote "Aunt Slick from Punkin Crick," will be the presentation of the "Four Corners Theater," in its broadcast to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

The plot of "Aunt Jerushy" has to do with outlandish goings-on in the lives of a group of rural folk when a carnival arrives in town. Incidental music for the play, appropriately rural in style, will be played by an orchestra under Bernard Hermann's direction.

RIPLEY—One of the most amazing feats ever accomplished by man will be described by Robert L. Ripley during his Believe It or Not program to be heard over WSB at 9 o'clock tonight.

Kuda Bux, young Hindu mystic, will be the principal actor, and Ripley will give an eye-witness account of his stroll over a bed of white hot coals, glowing in a pit four feet deep, three feet wide and 10 feet long.

Bux astounded members of the British Medical Society and the press with a similar demonstration in London a few years ago. He emerged from the ordeal without a single burn or blister. Coals prepared from the burning of five cords of oak logs will be used in the demonstration.

DANCETIME

The Dancetime program will feature two guest conductors on succeeding weeks while Joe Usher, regular conductor, is on vacation. Charles Margulis and his brass choir will be heard during the broadcast over WAGA at 7 o'clock tonight, and Allen Small will conduct the orchestra on August 9, with Usher returning to the summer music festival broadcasts one week later.

Margulis has one of the most novel organizations in music. It is composed entirely of brass instruments, yet he gets all of the effects of a fully orchestrated band. Small, an arranger and conductor of wide reputation, will lead the orchestra in a program of Continental and South American music.

Miller, Moon Face Barons Tonight; First Tilt Starts at 7:45

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Maybe it would be a good idea to have tonight known, in an unofficial way, as "Cracker night" at the Ponce de Leon ball park.

The Noble Lads have just completed one of the finest road trips any club battling for a pennant ever had.

When the Crackers left home, their lead had been trimmed almost in half by the Chattanooga Lookouts, who won three out of the four games here.

But the tip-off was the Crackers' showing in the last Chattanooga game. They won that one convincingly and showed one and all they were on their feet again. It probably was just as well for Chattanooga that the final double-header was rained out.

So the Crackers left for Birmingham and knocked off a team that is leading the league in hitting and is in second place in fielding, four in a row.

Then they moved into the domain of the challenging New Orleans Pelicans. They won three more straight and finally got beat, 4 to 0, on an out-field error.

It was such a brilliant thing, that road trip, that I think it's nothing but right that tonight should, unofficially, be known as "Cracker night" and Atlanta fans should be present in such numbers that anyone trying to find a seat would be in the same position as the fellow attempting to locate a needle in a haystack.

A double-header will be played with those Birmingham Barons, starting at 7:45 o'clock. The idea is that there will be two games for the prices of one—and ladies, naturally, are admitted free.

This is a natural. There is no reason whatever why the park shouldn't be packed to welcome back the league leaders. The current team easily is one of the most spirited in Atlanta baseball history.

PERHAPS THEY'LL HONOR RICHARDS. I wouldn't want to appear presumptuous, but, perhaps, the Atlanta Baseball Club will have a Paul Richards day or night before this season ends.

If anybody ever deserved a day it's Paul Richards, who stepped into one of the toughest managerial spots in minor league history and produced.

Without any previous managerial experience, Richards followed a fellow who had compiled the best record in Atlanta baseball annals. It was the winning of two straight pennants and finishing third the next year.

A change of managers was absolutely necessary and it fell to Richards to step into that spot. The current record of the club speaks for what Richards has done.

Pound 'Em Paul has never taken any credit for the team's success. He has very generously given it to the players who, after all, have played a big hand in it.

But Richards has done his part, too. There is no mistaking that. He has done a lot more than appears on the surface.

By all means let's have a Richards day. The young fellow probably won't want it. But, after all, there should be some extra recognition for a great job of work.

REMEMBER SMEAD JOLLEY? Remember Smead Jolley, the huge outfielder Nashville had for a time last year? He had a just reputation for slugging both in the big leagues and the minors, but he couldn't do any good against Southern league pitching.

He went back to the Pacific Coast league. Just ran across an item in the Oakland Tribune, and here is what it says:

"Let set aside Monday, September 5, as a double holiday at the Oakland park . . . Labor Day and Smead Jolley day."

"The Big Smudge has taken a strangle-hold on the Coast league batting championship. On his first north-west trip this season, Smead cuffed Portland and Seattle pitchers for 13 hits in 27 trips to the plate for a cool .481. That fattened his season's average 15 points, increasing his league lead to .392."

Sluggers on end, and otherwise, have been made to look puny in the Scott circuit. The pitching has a lot to do with it and the uniform largeness of the parks takes care of the rest.

IT WAS A GREAT DAY. After the golf and horseshoe pitching, there was nothing to do but eat barbecue. And, brother, that was plenty. Anything scheduled afterward would have been impossible.

The Crackers had a big day at Douglasville yesterday, following a stopover at the fine Austell course for a bit of golf. Rell J. Spiller and Johnny Suggs entertained the boys royally. They are proud of the greens and they have a right to be. They are like velvet carpets.

Bill Dozier and his fine aide, James Barnwell, prepared the usual barbecue at Roy Entekin's spring place, and an added feature was the presence of attractive Douglasville belles to serve it.

Aunt Minnie McGuirk, Mrs. Johnny Hill, Mrs. Entekin and Mrs. George Smith, great Cracker fans all, greeted the boys when they arrived but did not participate in the barbecue. It was strictly a stag affair. The ladies got a big kick out of simply welcoming the boys.

After the third helping, President Trammell Scott was helped to his feet by Maurice Coleman and Manager Paul Richards. "I'd like to have just one more plate," he said, "but there's a limit to all things."

BECKMAN AND DURHAM. During the month of July, Bill Beckman and Bob Durham won six games apiece for the Crackers. The two worthies between them turned in an even dozen victories.

Now, that's great pitching. Beckman lost two games during the month, including that men's night massacre, while Durham dropped only one.

The Crackers for some time now have had the best pitching in the league and there is just this much to say, in answer to an early doubt: Emil Leonard's loss was satisfactorily taken care of by the addition of Tom Sunkel to the staff.

It seemed illogical that the Crackers could fare so well with the same pitching staff as started out at the first of the year. Credit for this naturally belongs to Manager Paul Richards.

As mentioned in this column before, he has proven to be the smartest handler of pitchers in the Southern league. And, withal, one of the best hands at getting the most out of the talent in hand.

18-Hole Golf Meet at Lithia Springs Precedes Party; Entekin Host.

By ROY WHITE. This 25-year-old Rizzo is the spark-plug of the Pirates' challenge for the pennant. He is hitting around .315 and has driven in plenty of runs. Everybody on the Pirates' team admits that Rizzo's performance marks the difference between a team that may win the pennant and a club that may finish close to second division.

It was one of the best barbecues the Crackers have enjoyed at Douglasville. The hospitality outweighed the fine food, which made for a perfect day.

Assisting Entekin in the entertaining were Alpha Fowler, state senator from Douglas county; N. M. Hawley, Douglasville postmaster; Howard Thompson, mayor of Douglasville; Max Hardie, county agent; E. H. Leake, assistant county agent; Glenn Florence, Clark County, Harold Warren, J. H. Abercrombie, Floyd House, W. C. Abercrombie, Walter Leake, Dr. R. E. Hamilton, Gene Guffin, Judge Clifford James, Clyde Selman, Dr. Rayford Tharpe, former member of the Texas league, D. Selman, L. M. Camp, Nat Mosley, Pat O'Neal, H. C. Wood, Dr. C. V. Van Sant, W. D. Assisting in the serving were Neva Harding, Annie Ruth Hall, Billy Kilgore, Louise Wilson, Dorothy Kirkley, Francis Kirkley, Madeline Storer and Gene Duncan. They are students from Douglas County High school.

In addition to members of the Cracker baseball team and officials, representatives from the three Atlanta newspaper sporting departments and Trammell Scott, president of the Southern league, were present.

Bramham Announces Manager's Suspension. DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 1.—(P)—President W. G. Bramham, of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, announced today that H. E. (Ducky) Holmes, president and manager of the Dayton club, of the Middle Atlantic league, had been suspended for 120 playing days, effective July 22. Bramham said the suspension was ordered after an investigation of charges that Holmes attacked Umpire Charles Whittle in a game at Dayton July 22.

DOUBLES ACE. ENDICOTT, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(P)—Ben Balsley, of the I. B. M. Country Club, has scored his second hole-in-one on the same No. 3 hole with the same club with which he performed the feat a year ago.

Bob Hasty Released As Cordele Manager. THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—(P)—Shaking the news spotlight today with the announcement of the all-star team in the Georgia-Florida league was the announcement of the release of Bob Hasty, veteran pitcher, as manager of the Cordele Reds, and the appointment of Catcher Bill Taylor as his successor.

Herbert (Spot) Raines, of the Cordele Dispatch, said Hasty has been released and Taylor made manager. Hasty has been managing the Reds since the start of the season, succeeding Ivey Griffin, who last year steered them to a pennant. The Cordele club has been in the second division this season. Taylor has been a Cordele catcher for the past two years.

First Southern Player To Score on Eli Dies. ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 1.—(P)—Tom Nelson, 34, former University of Georgia football star, who was the first player on a southern team to cross the Yale goal line in a football game, died Sunday after an illness of one week.

Nelson, ordinary of Dougherty county since 1935, played baseball as well as football at the university and was a popular student. After having graduated from the university in 1926, Mr. Nelson held positions in New York and with power companies in West Virginia and North Carolina. He was later connected here with the Albany Exchange National Bank.

Mr. Nelson is survived by two uncles, Joseph Lee, of Philadelphia, and Albert Lee, of Bethlehem, Pa., as well as many relatives in Albany.

Douglasville Event Usual Huge Success

By ROY WHITE. Back home after the most successful road trip of the year, Manager Paul Richards and his league-leading Atlanta Crackers will battle the Birmingham Barons at 7:45 o'clock tonight in a double-header at Ponce de Leon park. It will be the first of four games with the Barons, and will be followed by four games with the New Orleans Pelicans.

Larry Miller and Leo Moon will be Manager Richards' pitching choices against the Barons.

The Crackers returned home Monday from New Orleans, with an eight-game lead over the second-place Pels and 11 1-2 games in front of the Barons in sixth place. Only three and one-half games separate second and sixth place.

SEVEN OUT OF EIGHT. Seven victories in eight starts against Birmingham and New Orleans gave the Crackers the best road trip of the year. The lone loss came at the end of the trip, when Marshall Mauldin let a ball get past him for New Orleans' only run of the game, but enough to break the Crackers' winning streak of eight straight.

STRONGEST LINEUP. One of the Crackers' strongest lineups of the year will face the Barons tonight in the twin bill. The injured list has been "doctored" clean, and for the first time in several weeks Atlanta fans will see every player on the team ready to go.

Bobby Durham, the league's ace relief hurler, continued his climb and now tops the pitchers' parade in 10 wins and four losses. Tom Sunkel, left fielder, hit Bill Crouch, Nashville, holding second place.

Birmingham's four straight losses to Atlanta sent the Barons down to sixth place, but they bounced right back with three wins out of four games against Rajah Hornsby's Chicago Cubs.

LEAD IN HITTING. The Barons, though several games in the second division, are no weaklings. They are leading the league in hitting and second in fielding. Kirby Higbe is in the lead in the pitching race and will face the Crackers probably Wednesday.

Newt Kimball, who limited Chattanooga to four hits in a 12-to-1 victory in his last time out, is certain to pitch one of tonight's games. George is most likely to face the Crackers in the other game, with Kit Carson and Sheriff Blake ready, if needed.

City Dub Tourney Begins Play Today. Play starts today at 10 o'clock at the Billmore courts in the second annual city dub tennis tournament. In case of rain, today's matches will be run off tomorrow.

More than 75 players have entered the meet and the large entry forces some of the first-round matches to be played tomorrow.

Women's singles play starts tomorrow and entries may be made with Nat Collins at Main 9727.

Two of Atlanta's best young players, Charles Rice and Robert Wyatt, both junior Davis cuppers, will play in the opening matches.

Other matches are as follows: 11 A. M.—Billie Austin vs. Walter Paul; Frank Jones vs. Charles Brooks.

Noon—Frank Bailey vs. Rodney Cook; Jim O'Callaghan vs. Sid Underwood.

2 P. M.—Larry Davis vs. B. Sales Jr.; Dudley Fitts vs. Bill Reid.

3 P. M.—Paul Gleason vs. Billy Brooks; Weldon Selman vs. Charles Lendick.

4 P. M.—Charles Booker vs. Ed Wilks; C. Medeiros vs. Marion Johnson.

5 P. M.—E. A. Brown vs. Asa Wilson; Buford Scogin vs. Murray Howard.

6 P. M.—Katie Fates vs. Bill Youngblood; Robert Sims vs. Claude Parker; A. Graves vs. Willie Lieder; Paul Bynum vs. Edwin Ford; Donald Floyd vs. Ham Dabney; Parker Stillwell vs. Bob Howell.

7 P. M.—Milton Allen vs. Dan Bruce; Nick Shropshire vs. M. Turner; Fred Lynch vs. George Galloway.

ATLANTAN LOSSES. In the girls' division (15 years and under), of the third annual western junior girls and girls tennis meet in Milwaukee, Ruth Lindsey, Dallas, Texas, won two matches yesterday, defeating Mary Crane, of Milwaukee, 6-3, 6-2, and then disposing of Hollis Rawson, of Atlanta, Ga., 6-3, 6-1.

Tobin, Buc Hurler, Is 'Star of Month'.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(P)—Young Jim Tobin, the Pittsburgh Pirates' relief pitcher, starting pitcher, pinch-hitter and general handy man, is baseball's "star of the month" for July.

He drew five nominations to take the honors during the 31-day span in the Associated Press' daily poll of "yesterday's stars." Two of his five nominations were for hitting, the others for pitching.

Closely to him for the month were those low-range cannons of the American league, Hank Greenberg, of the Detroit Tigers, and Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, each with four daily selections.

For the season to date, Big Charley the Red Ruffing, No. 1 right-hander of the World Champion Yankees' flinging staff, is out in front, having been named 10 times in the daily list since the campaign got under way. Greenberg, Tex. Bill Lee, Chicago Cubs' pitcher, with nine each, were runners-up.

THE SPORT-LIGHT. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Arm or Head? NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—What makes a pitcher? Natural stuff—or the experience that enables him to go on winning games when some of his stuff has left him? There is room for argument there. Was Lefty Grove a better pitcher when he was blowing the enemy down with a fast ball, or when, as in these last couple of years, he hung up a fine record without a hop on his fast one?

Was a strong, young fellow with a tireless arm a better pitcher than Herb Pennock was along about 1926 and 1927, when he couldn't break a pane of glass with his fast ball—but had the hitter's chasing his curve ball out of the park?

What is in front of Dizzy Dean and Vernon Gomez, now that the smoke has drifted from their deliveries? Can they be better pitchers because they have to stop and think now before winding up—instead of just rearing back and, as Diz used to say, fogging the ball through the middle?

I asked Christy Mathewson once, a long time ago, about that. "I was a better pitcher when I was young and had my fast ball," he said.

The Old Master. He was a great pitcher at the time I asked him the question. They called him the Old Master—and he was all of that. Watching him pitch was a thrill in itself. He wasted no motion and he made every pitch count. A smooth, easy windup—and a ball good enough to hit, but not quite good enough to hit solidly, especially when there were men on the bases and a hit might mean a run or two.

His control was so nearly perfect that he seldom walked a man, and Chief Meyers, who was his catcher then, said that he could catch him sitting in a rocking chair.

You've often read that a pitcher "made" a hitter hit into a double play, or "made" him hit to left field. That's a laugh. Not even Matty could make the hitters do that. But he literally made them hit. He knew every hitter's weakness—and every hitter's strength. He laid the ball right in between the two so the hitter couldn't resist the temptation to hit it, but seldom could hit it as he wanted to—except Joe Tinker, for whom, curiously enough, Matty never forgot, either, that he had seven other players behind him, and he wisely let them help him as much as he could. And when the going was easy, he loafed. But when the pinches came he bore down and even when they beat him, they didn't often beat him by much.

TIME OUT! By CHET SMITH

U. S. MEDICOS FLOUT NEW DEAL CHARGE OF LAW VIOLATIONS

Medical Association Virtually Sends Challenge To Struggle in Courts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The American Medical Association, faced with a federal grand jury investigation because of its fight against a co-operative health group, virtually challenged the Roosevelt administration today to a court struggle which may have profound effects on the future of American medicine.

Replying to the charge of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold that "organized medicine" broke the anti-trust laws while opposing the co-operative, the association said in a statement at Chicago:

"Apparently it remains to be determined whether the federal administration can use the laws and the courts to mould the people of the United States to its belief in every phase of life and living, or whether fundamental principles of common justice which have prevailed in this country in the past are to be relegated into the limbo of forgotten things."

"The assistant attorney general apparently offers to the American Medical Association and to the others concerned an opportunity to avoid trial by agreeing to consent decrees which will assure the co-operation of the medical association in the operation of co-operative clinics," the American Medical Journal said.

Other medical opinion, however, was critical of the A. M. A.'s stand. In Boston, Dr. Channing Frothingham, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, said, "Organized medicine is making an awful mistake by not following the trend of public opinion in medical and hospital insurance plans. The trouble is, doctors are independent fellows and think their rights are being taken away. They can't see that they'll be benefited. I'm glad the whole thing is coming out into the open."

At Milwaukee, Dr. Rock Sleyster, president-elect of the American Medical Association, said Arnold's charges were unfounded.

"The American Medical Association," Sleyster said, "has the right to enforce certain membership requirements and expel members who fail to comply with them. The charges of conspiracy to prevent doctors from practicing is ridiculous."

PINE BODY TO HONOR DR. CHARLES HERTY

Forestry Association Meeting Will Be Held in Savannah October 1.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The quarterly meeting of the Slash Pine Forestry Association will be held October 12 in Savannah as a memorial to the late Dr. Charles H. Herty, it was learned today from Elliott W. Reed.

Mr. Reed received a letter from J. S. Elkins, secretary of the association, yesterday proposing that the meeting be held here October 12 unless it would conflict with some other program.

In his letter, Elkins said foresters from Georgia, South Carolina and other states would be invited to the meeting. Efforts will be made to make it the biggest meeting yet held, as a fitting memorial to Dr. Herty.

It will be the first time that a meeting of the association has been held in Savannah.

The program committee is composed of Frank Heyward, state forester, chairman; Donald Brewster, extension forester for South Carolina; Clemens College; Joe Mitchell and Elliott W. Reed.

Discussing what the loss of the death of Dr. Charles H. Herty has meant to the program of the association, Elkins said: "It is strange and sad to plan for a meeting without anticipating Dr. Herty's presence and his interesting discussions."

In another communication relative to the meeting, Elkins said: "We must resolve to go after the task he (Dr. Herty) has set for us; and honor his memory by performing it in a manner that would delight him were he here with us."

COMMISSION EXTENDS WRBL'S RADIO TIME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A communications commission examiner recommended today the Columbus (Ga.) Broadcasting Company, Inc., be permitted to operate radio station WRBL on unlimited time.

The station now is using 100 watts power daytime. The examiner recommended granting of authority to increase the station's power to one kilowatt and use a directional antenna.

Fulton Fugitive Trapped By 'Bottle' in Macon

Randolph Kirkland, who escaped from the Fulton county jail Saturday afternoon, was arrested in Macon yesterday and was returned here. Kirkland was apprehended by Macon officers for alleged drunkenness and a checkup of his fingerprints showed he was wanted in this city.

He was arrested here Saturday afternoon in the theft of an automobile. Taken to the jail, he was fingerprinted and led to the rear of the building pending assignment to a cell. Left unguarded momentarily, Kirkland calmly strolled out of the building with another person who had been visiting in the institution.

Diverse Cotton, Tobacco Programs Are Topics for Senate Candidates

Three Indicate Favoring Enlarged Production; Senator George Asks Wallace for Cotton Loan of '75 Per Cent of Parity Price,' Urging Increased Production.

Diverse farm programs of Georgia's senatorial candidates provided a commentary yesterday upon renewed discussion of crop control legislation for cotton and tobacco.

Lawrence S. Camp New Deal supporter, said he expected to "make a speech real soon and devote my entire time to the cotton plan." All the three others have indicated they favor enlarged production.

Senator Walter F. George asked Secretary Wallace today to consider a cotton loan "of 75 per cent of parity price" and, with Governor E. D. Rivers, urged suspension of tobacco marketing quotas for 1938.

In a recent speech the senator said: "I am confident that a farm program substantially voluntary in character can be worked out; that we can and should increase our present volume of production to the end that we may give greater opportunity to our farm workers and may rebuild our local enterprises and communities."

Talmadge Comments.
Eugene Talmadge, commenting upon a "domestic allotment" agreement under renewed discussion which would permit farmers to grow all they desired for foreign markets, suggested tariff revision instead.

"If they would put a tariff on cotton, cotton products, juice and vegetable oils," the ex-Governor said, "we wouldn't need restrictions on cotton at all."

William G. McRae, Townsend plan advocate, said in an address two weeks ago: "I'd rather see our government spend money to pay the farmers and laborers to produce more goods than for it to continue to pay out billions to keep them from producing goods."

McRae told an assembly at Canton yesterday all candidates in the gubernatorial race had agreed "the state cannot raise enough money to provide adequate pensions and that the federal government must assume this responsibility."

"If our old people are to receive their pensions," he said, "they must elect William G. McRae."

Rivers Stresses Health.
Governor Rivers stressed health statistics in a campaign address at Atlanta last night, reporting Georgia's death rate from all causes had dropped 9.9 per cent in the last 18 months under an enlarged medical program.

Seminole county supporters presented him for campaign expenses a bale of cotton they believed to be Georgia's first of 1938. It was grown by Chairman L. R. Robinson, of the county board of commissioners.

Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney who protests "the unprecedented increase in taxation," had gubernatorial campaign engagements today at McDonough and Talbotton.

Speaking at Ashburn, Sylvester and Camilla, John J. Mangham, of Bremen, reiterated his advocacy

100 Girls Given Real Training In Housekeeping

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—With 100 girls enrolled, the second session of the NYA residential training project at the Georgia State College for Women will open here tomorrow.

The girls will be housed in six buildings near the campus rented by NYA because of crowded facilities in the dormitories. Regular housekeeping units have been set up in two of the homes, where the girls will learn home-making and buy, prepare and serve their own meals.

The girls will assist in the school tea room, the Milledgeville hospital, the nursery school and "I" male garments for state public welfare institutions as part of the six months of training. The work for each girl is adapted to her particular need and desires, girls being transferred among the various types of work in order that each may get his full benefit of the program.

The project is one of eight established by NYA in conjunction with educational institutions. They serve as work centers at which young people may obtain educational training and practical work experience leading to self-sustenance through private employment and a more satisfactory home and family life.

Gifted Pianist Is Director of Music at Maryland School for Blind

Elizabeth Pattillo and Her Mother Are Visiting Here This Week

By Sally Forth.

ELIZABETH PATTILLO lives in Baltimore but she is visiting in Atlanta this week. She was born and reared here and is descended from distinguished forebears. From her early infancy, Elizabeth has been denied the privilege of looking at this beautiful world through the windows of her soul. But an all-wise Providence endowed her with a musical talent which she displayed long before she passed her third birthday.

Just as soon as Elizabeth reached the keyboard of the piano with the tips of her fingers—and she had to stand on tiptoe to achieve this feat—she began to play by ear, every tune she heard. When this gifted girl grew older she was taught the fundamentals of music by an Atlanta teacher and gave several concerts during her childhood.

After that period Elizabeth studied and graduated from the Maryland School for the Blind. She continued her musical education at Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore and received her diploma from that famous institution. Previous to her arrival in Atlanta, Elizabeth signed a new contract to be director of music for the Maryland School for the Blind.

This is the first visit that this gifted young woman has made here in three years. Mrs. Maude Simmons Pattillo is the devoted companion of her daughter, and accompanied her to the city of her birth. It is very remarkable to hear Elizabeth play her repertoire of classical and popular music. She is a brilliant performer and grants any requests from her listeners and admirers.

SHE was voted the prettiest girl in the senior class at Washington Seminary a few years ago. He was one of the handsomest boys to graduate from Tech in June.

Although rumor has it that she will make her bow to society this fall, she has chosen in favor of matrimony, and is now wearing a beautiful diamond solitaire.

AN ATTRACTIVE young lady was traveling to Hawaii with her uncle. En route to the tropical isle she met many attentive young men, but her ideal was not among them. She had a delightful trip to Hawaii, and had almost forgotten her dream of romance when she attended a dance the last night.

She was dancing with her uncle when she saw "him," and he was all that she could hope for—tall, dark and attractive. He spied her, too. In a few minutes, he had himself introduced, and sought her frequently the remainder of the evening as his dancing partner. Sally doesn't need to explain how thrilled was the young belle.

The next day the young girl searched eagerly for her handsome swain to say good-bye. All the way to the boat she entertained a faint hope of meeting him, but she was disappointed.

On the first night of her return voyage she was invited to sit at the captain's table, and wore her prettiest evening dress to resurrect her injured pride. It was then that she saw him—entering the dining room with a tray!

SALLY'S column would overflow if names of senders of all the flowers and telegrams were listed that have been received by William Crumley Roberts, who was born Sunday at Piedmont hospital. However, it is always interesting to note the first of anything, whether referring to sweethearts, chocolate sodas or telegrams. Little Billy's first telegram came from Mrs. Ella Huff, of Rome, who is an old friend of Billy's mother, the former Caroline Crumley. His proud father, William B. Roberts, sent the first flowers—red roses—which is a charming habit he began during Caroline's debut year.

THIS column last week carried details of a house party at Kingswood at which Alice Thomas and her cousin, Ruth King New, of Baltimore, are co-hostesses. News has come now that a group of friends whom Ruth imported from Baltimore are to share the fun at Clayton. They are Rose Marie Healy, Katherine Murphy, Phil Myers, Pearce Chase, Jerry Travers, Charles Wilson, Clarence Sharnan and Virginia Griffin, of Asheville.

Mrs. Robert Bartlett Entertains Matrons.

Miss Rickenbacker's Engagement To James A. Jacobs Is Announced

MISS GLADYS RICKENBACKER.

Enlisting the interest of a wide circle of friends throughout the state is the announcement of the betrothal of Miss Gladys Elise Rickenbacker to James Asbury Jacobs, both of Atlanta. The marriage of the popular young couple is scheduled for Friday, August 26.

The lovely bride-elect is the younger daughter of Mrs. Henry LeRoy Rickenbacker and the late Mr. Rickenbacker. She is the sister of Mrs. Carolyn Maddox, B. L. and P. H. Rickenbacker, of Atlanta, and L. C. Rickenbacker, of Carrollton, Ky. Miss Rickenbacker attended school in Forsyth and completed her education later in Atlanta.

Mr. Jacobs is the only son of Oscar Jacobs and the late Mrs. Jacobs, of Atlanta, and the brother of Miss Helen Jacobs, of Atlanta.

The bridegroom-elect is a graduate of Boys' High school and Emory University. He took his degree in law at Woodrow Wilson College of Law and has been admitted to the Georgia bar. His fraternities are Sigma Chi, Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa. Mr. Jacobs is connected in business with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, with headquarters in Atlanta, where he and his bride will reside following their marriage.

journey north and will be at home late on Wingfield street, the Hill, Augusta, where Mr. Harris is engaged in business. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Bohler, of Grovetown, and a graduate of Junior College.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Harris, of Grovetown, and a graduate of Junior College.

The class has ended a two-month contest for new members. The winners were entertained by the losing side, the green side winning. The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. J. L. Teague, assisted by Mesdames J. T. Cornelson, W. A. Davis, A. L. Glass, S. W. Bell, D. F. Collins, T. N. Gilstrap, D. W. Hembree, T. B. Rutherford, Maude Williamson and H. G. Higgins.

Readings were given by Mrs. W. R. Beattie, after which a play was presented, depicting the old-fashioned country school. Luncheon was served in the dining room of the church, with the green color scheme featuring the table decorations.

The bride wore a gown of navy blue chiffon with trimming of real lace.

Miss Hightower Is Honor Guest

Miss Virginia Hightower, of Thomaston, Ga., whose marriage to Alfred Kennedy Jr., of this city, will be an important event of next Saturday, was honor guest at a luncheon given yesterday by Miss Ruth Atkinson, of Pasadena, Cal., and Miss Lawrence Harrell, of Brunswick, Ga., who will be bridesmaids in the Hightower-Kennedy wedding.

Covers were placed for the honor guest, the hostesses, the other bridesmaids, including Misses Bobbie Hightower, Myra Jenkins and Ann Hightower, of Thomaston; Lady Jane Akin, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Robert E. Hightower Jr., of Thomaston, and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, mothers of the betrothed couple.

Oklahoma Visitor Is Feted Here.

Miss Marjorie Mayo, of Tulsa, Okla., who is visiting Mrs. Robert Lorton, also of Tulsa, at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Rogers, is being feted at numerous parties.

Among these is the party at which Ewell Gay and George Gantt will be hosts Friday evening honoring the visitor. This affair will take place at the country farm of Mr. Gay on Powers Ferry road and will assemble a limited group of friends of the hosts and honor guest.

Mrs. Lorton was hostess Sunday at an appetizing party at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring Miss Mayo.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Rogers. Seventy friends of the hostess called at 5:30 o'clock to meet Miss Mayo.

Fulton Democratic Woman's Club To Honor Miss Shepperson Today

Fulton County Democratic Woman's Club will honor Miss Gay B. Shepperson at the meeting to be held today at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Harry G. Poole on Cascade road.

This meeting has been advanced so that the state WPA supervisors, who are in session at the Piedmont hotel, may take part in this tribute to their chief.

In addition to Miss Shepperson, special guests will be Governor and Mrs. Rivers, Charles S. Reid, state chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, and Mrs. Reid; Hughes Spaulding, chairman Fulton County Democratic Executive Committee, and Mrs. Spaulding; Mayor and Mrs. Hartsfield, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Moore, Fulton county commissioners and their wives, members of city council and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McGill, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Porter, Major and Mrs. Clark

Howell, John Paschall and Cecil Cannon.

Mrs. Max Land, president of the club, announces that members are asked to attend the meeting accompanied by their husbands or escorts to enjoy the program and the watermelon-cutting with which Mrs. Poole will compliment the Democrats of the county organization.

Mr. Reid will speak on President Roosevelt's forthcoming visit to Georgia, and Miss Shepperson will discuss the advantages to Georgia of the recently enacted federal program under which the state will receive 50 million dollars.

A board meeting will immediately precede the short program. Members with extra seats in their cars are asked to notify Miss Byrd Blankenship, Hemlock 0143, also those who wish transportation.

Miss Burdell Weds A. G. Arapian.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burdell announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Florence, to Ansel Geoffrey Arapian, the wedding having taken place July 29 at St. Patrick's church in Washington, District of Columbia.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Dressman in the presence of the young couple's parents and a few relatives and close friends. The bride wore a coat suit of triple sheer and accessories in matching shades. She wore a bouquet of purple orchids.

Mrs. L. H. Jackson, of Atlanta, was matron of honor and she wore an afternoon model of luggage tan with accessories to match and a bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies. Mr. Perry Fugate was Mr. Arapian's best man.

Mrs. Arapian was a popular belle of Atlanta and she has many friends here and in other southern cities. She is a graduate of the Druid Hills High school and for the past two years she attended Wesleyan College at Macon.

Mr. Arapian is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Ansel G. Arapian, of East Lake road. He attended Marist College. He was graduated from Tech High school last year and now holds a responsible position with the Nunnally company in Washington, D. C.

After a short honeymoon to a lodge in Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Arapian will reside in an apartment in Washington, D. C.

Man's Love for Woman and Love for Bottle Different

By Caroline Chatfield.

One little point the wife of a tippling husband must get firmly established in her mind before she can take up her cross and carry it is that a man's love for a woman and his love for the bottle have no connection, though the consequences are certainly intertwined. Now if she wants to be angry with herself for making a poor choice of a husband that's one thing, but no use to get her feelings hurt with the husband because he has a weakness he can't cope with.

The simple matter of keeping the peace with him when he's in his cups is her first and hardest job for the reason that he picks the row if he can. It's not enough for her to hold her tongue. She must keep out of her eyes the hurt look, the reproving look, the contemptuous look and the I could-wring-your-neck look or the fight is on.

However tight that husband may be, he knows intuitively that one or all of these looks is coming to him. He may not be able to walk the proverbial crack, but catch the door as it comes around the room to him, but he can always catch the dirty look in his wife's eyes. And that's funny, even if it is tragic.

Her next job is to protect the children as best she can from embarrassment at their father's indulgence, to teach them to love and respect him for his

Dazzling Ideas for College Room

By Elizabeth Boykin.

Ellen K. Came tearing by our house the other morning on her way to town.

"I'm getting things for my college room, so please give me some bright ideas," she said all in one breath. "Let's see—I'll need six sheets and four pillow cases, two blankets and a puff, two bedspreads, a screen (to hide the junk), some boxes and closet things, curtains, a rug, waste baskets, lamps and a photograph. But I'm all in a dither about what to get."

Which took us back to our own freshman days. And the to-do we made over fixing up a two-by-four room which we thought was quite "the berries," or was it "the oats" in our dear dead youth.

The Answer.

Usually the bare facts alone are included in a college room—bed, desk, chest and desk chair. For Ellen we suggested natural pongee curtains to match the natural cream walls and make the room seem more spacious, but to dress up the windows a bit we'd have a box pleated valance of Scotch plaid gingham predominately green. We advised a bedspread of this same gingham made with a pleated flounce, and extra cushions—some in maroon, some in Scotch plaid, some in plain beige. The rug would be a piece of maroon broadloom, and one pair of blankets we'd have in beige, the other pair in maroon. Sheets and pillow cases we urged in some definitely identifying color or design to help keep them straight in the laundry. Beige percale would be awfully smart, but if she could quite go that she might get white with green hems. Pewter and maroon would be our choice in accessories.

We recommend one of those composition box-chests that would roll-door portable closet to go behind the screen. These for the simple reason that there never seems to be enough closet space. As for the screen—why not a plain composition board screen decorated with autographs of college friends.

Five Factors In Correct Squeeze

By Harold Sharpsteen.

MECHANICS OF SQUEEZE.

In rubber bridge games the time for declaring to look about for a possible two-suit single squeeze is when he discovers he is one trick short of his contract. Duplicate players turn to the squeeze as a means of developing extra tricks.

The first essential, in either case, is a long established suit or two good set-up suits capable of forcing one definite opponent to discard controlling cards to the breaking point... and breaking it. Apart from the mathematical requirements, declarer must hold a quick entry into the hand opposite the squeeze lead.

There are five important factors to take into consideration in the successful development of a squeeze.

Two "Threat" Suits. Declarer's side is required to possess two "threat" suits... a one-card "threat" and a two-or-more-card suit, both of which will have to be guarded by one definite opponent.

Squeeze Lead. The squeeze-lead card must be in the suit in which adversary is void, in order to force an unwilling discard.

Quick Entry. Having forced the discard of a winner in one "threat" suit or the guard of a winner in the other, by reason of the squeeze lead, declarer, to profit by the squeeze, must hold a quick entry into the hand opposite from which the squeeze is applied.

Gown for August brides: Shirley Ross wears this wedding dress, designed by Edith Head. The gown is fashioned of white net and trimmed with rows of narrow white velvet ribbon. The period appearance of the ensemble is enhanced by the billowing skirt, molded waistline and quaint net veil.

Gloria Dickson Introduces Two-Jacket, One-Skirt Suit

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—Of interest to August brides is the wedding dress worn by Shirley Ross in Paramount's "Paris Honey-moon." Designed by Edith Head, the unusual gown is fashioned of white net and trimmed with rows of narrow white velvet ribbon. The billowing skirt, molded waistline and quaint net veil give a definite period look to the extremely attractive ensemble.

Wendy Barrie, now working with Eddie G. Robinson in "I am the Law," will be seen in the picture in a bottle-green bengaline dress featuring the new raglan sleeves. The skirt is full and flared. A zipper starts at the hemline, right up the front into a turned-down pointed white silk pique collar. Tight white pique cuffs terminate the sleeves at the wrist. Black suede belt with silver nail heads, black straw beret bound around the crown with silk pique and black patent open-toed shoes complete the costume.

Vacation-bound readers could do worse than read Olivia de Havilland's travel hints. For her recent trip to Florida, Olivia had crushed turbans made to match every ensemble—to eliminate a hat-box. She kept herself down to two complete sets of accessories in colors that harmonize with all her frocks, and included as many knitted and printed crepe dresses as she could carry, which, as you know, require the least servicing en route.

Jean Arthur, now making her picture comeback in "You Can't Take It With You," has bought a light-background print dress—white splashed with red poppies—that she wears in the film. The frock is very simple, with short sleeves and square neckline. A natural leghorn hat with high crown ties under the chin with green grosgrain ribbons. White gloves and bag, and white patent open-toed sandals, a black lightweight wool princess style coat, worn over the dress like a redingote, for the rest of the ensemble.

The first Hollywood girl to come out with the two-jacket and one-skirt idea is Gloria Dickson, who appeared at the races recently wearing a powder blue sheer wool skirt with a long fitted jacket of plaid blue and white linen. Over it went the tailored action-back jacket of sheer blue wool. The top jacket, a little roomier than the dress-coat, was collarless and just a little shorter than the other, so that a band of the plaid linen showed at the neckline. The idea has possibilities for the fall.

Milo Anderson has designed a number of "find the pocket" tricks on Priscilla Lane's frocks which she will wear in "Brother Rat." For instance, a light blue linen dress, belted in blue and yellow-striped linen, with a short yoke of like material cut on the same curved lines, has slit pockets tucked into the front of the belt and high on the yoke. Another light blue dress has a plaid blue taffeta stole ending in diamond-shaped pockets. A frock for Jane Bryan, in the same picture, has pockets hidden in the under-side of a red pique bolero, which tops a white and red dotted cotton sheer frock.

For entertaining at her home recently, Kay Francis wore a chiffon formal designed by Orry-Kelly. The dress, of white chiffon, featured wrist-length sleeves, softly draped bodice and girle at the waistline. The skirt fell in soft folds to a train behind. A scarf-like drape of Chinese red chiffon was draped across the back of the shoulders and caught at the waist with brilliant encrusted gold leaves, the ends falling to the hemline.

Get Suntan By a Slow Process

By Dr. William Brady.

When sunburn is more than mere reddening, smarting and itching, which is relieved by the frequent application of calamine lotion, the inflammation may be alleviated by wrapping the inflamed surface in soft towels wet with a solution of 15 grains of aluminum acetate to the pint of water, and this is more effective if the patient is kept warm while the wet packs are on.

If any blisters rise, they should be opened with sterile (freshly boiled) scissors or with sterile (flamed) needle, the serum or fluid gently pressed out with soft, sterile (freshly washed and ironed) muslin or linen pads, and the spot brushed over with 2 per cent solution of gentian violet in water (approximately 10 grains in the ounce).

The drawback about the use of this gentian violet solution is of course that it stains the skin. A ship surgeon on a South American cruiser found that painting the entire burned area gave the greatest relief, when the victim was willing to put up with the stain for a week or more.

Sunburn of the second degree (blisters) is as serious as any other burn and should have the care of a physician. If any salve is applied as a remedy, after blistering, it should be a sterile one (uncontaminated by exposure to air or dust or contact with human skin). If medical care is not available, these salves or ointments, preferably applied by squeezing sufficient ointment from a collapsible tube to cover the blistered or raw surface, are useful: Boric ointment (10 per cent boric acid ointment, official in the U. S. P. and the B. P.), Old Doc Ointment (as supplied in tubes to physicians under the name of "lyptoline," by a national physicians' supply house) and tanipaste which contains tannic acid and chlorbutanol, a local anesthetic, supplied to physicians and druggists by another large pharmaceutical house. A tube of one of these salves kept in the family medicine cupboard will be found handy for the first aid treatment of burns, scalds, stings and many minor wounds.

Youth has to learn by experience that it is wise to discontinue the sunbath or exposure to direct or reflected sunlight (as by water, snow or sand) as soon as a noticeable bluish, flush or reddening of the skin occurs. That is a first degree burn, and a first degree sunburn is uncomfortable enough for any one to endure. To carry the exposure beyond that point is to court suffering from a second-degree burn. So far as tanning is concerned, the most satisfactory bronzing is obtained by moderately increasing doses of ultraviolet, never persisting longer than the stage of erythema or reddening.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Vitamin B and Deafness.

Please give full particulars regarding vitamin B for help in deafness. (Mrs. E. E.)

Answer—All I know is that there have been a number of reports of marked improvement in hearing when the deaf have taken a large daily ration of vitamin B to supplement the diet—preferably vitamin B complex (not synthetic or pure vitamin B), as in three or four ounces of plain wheat, or one or two ounces of wheat germ, or six or eight tablets of vitamin B complex daily. I hope readers who try this will report what results they experience.

Exercise for Sciatica.

For 25 years I had rheumatism in knees and often attacks of lumbago and sciatica. Two years ago I began doing the following exercise—timidly and cautiously at first, gradually more enthusiastically, and now I have no more trouble at all. Exercise: Kick backward with heel as high above hip as possible—straight back and up first, then out and up on either side, then in under the other leg and up. (J. H. H.)

Answer—Thank you. Perhaps your suggestion will encourage others to try some exercise and tell us their experience.

The Strength of Tincture of Iodine.

When I asked for the "mild tincture of iodine" our druggist informed me there is only one strength of tincture of iodine sold, and that is 10 per cent strength. (E. B.)

Answer—United States Pharmacopoeia specifies Tincture of Iodine (7½ per cent strength) and Mild Tincture of Iodine (2½ per cent). The mild tincture of iodine is intended for emergency disinfection of minor wounds. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

MY DAY: First Lady Bids Her Grandchildren Goodbye

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y.—Friday afternoon I said goodbye to my grandchildren very sadly, for they will be gone in a few days and I shall not see them till I make my next trip to Seattle.

In Patchogue I ran into some people who were much excited over the purchase by Father Divine of an estate across the river from my mother-in-law's house. I always feel sorry for people who have to sell a country place they have lived in and enjoyed for many years. One has so much more sentiment, as a rule, about one's country life. It must, however, be pleasant to feel that the future this place will be "Heaven" to some people, even if it cannot be to its former owner.

I had a little time to spare in New York. My brother met me and relieved me of a taxi fare and my rather unusually large number of bags, and so I stopped at Finland House, Inc. I was much interested in their beautiful woven materials, glass, pottery and a modern type of furniture which would fit very well into a room of the sun porch variety.

From there I went on to the Pennsylvania station to take the train for Long Island. I found long lines at every ticket window and murmured to myself, as would every old resident of the Hudson river valley, "Nothing would induce me to live on Long Island." Of course, nothing would induce some of us to live anywhere else than where we are accustomed to living. But that isn't flattering to the spot we are rooted in as it might seem. It simply means that most of us are lazy and let the things to which we are accustomed. For most of us it is far easier to move along a beaten track.

One of my hosts met me on the train and, in consequence, the trip went quickly. Just as we arrived at our station, the heavens opened and we saw the pretty and very efficient young girl who had come to meet us hop out of the roadster and start to put up the top. I decided it was part of wisdom to let those who knew what they were doing do the work and get wet, and was therefore the only dry person to get into the car. There are advantages in being elderly and rather helpless.

We reached the "Little House," as it is called, in time to sit and cool off before dinner, and then our hostess served us a delicious meal on the porch. This is a beautiful place which gives you a feeling of remoteness, for you are buried deep in the woods. Just now the enjoyment of the woods is of little difficulty because the prevailing winds have brought clouds of mosquitoes. They tell us that a northwest wind would drive them all away, so we pray for a change in the wind and realize anew how helpless we are in the face of nature's vagaries.

Unnecessary Silly Blunders Will Make You Unpopular

Marjorie and Don, Mil and Charlie—these couples belong to different sets. You've only to watch their manners to know which is the right set!

Mil's all a-twitter over Charlie—who doesn't know enough to get out of his car and stand when a girl stops to talk to him. Marjorie's amused—for she's used to well-bred men like Don, who removes his hat when he meets her on the street, keeps it off during their talk.

Such differences keep Mil and her crowd socially on the wrong side of the tracks. Avoid the blunders which are their trademarks.

At restaurants Mil and her friends flop down anywhere—not noticing the chair the waiter pulls out. The men call the waiter "Here you" or some name funny to THEM.

On buses or street cars the girls hang around the entrance while the men pay the fares. They never seem to know who should get off first.

If they go in a foursome to a game they argue loudly about who should sit where.

You can always tell Marjorie's friends by their good breeding. At restaurants, the girls smoothly seat themselves with the waiter's help. The men, when asking for service, call "Waiter."

In public vehicles, the girls go to their seats at once, follow their escorts when leaving.

Without fuss, frowns or seat themselves at games or at the movies so the men are ONE and FOUR, the girls TWO and THREE.

Your own manners can be as perfect. Get tips from our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day." She poses on all occasions—parties, dinners, dances, motoring, at theaters, fable manners.

Send 15c for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Lillian Mae's Festive Frock Easy to Sew

Charm! Lillian Mae has it down to a science in her latest dress pattern 4860. To secure that enchanting new front fullness in the bodice just inset gathered panels below the unusual curved yokes. What's more our pattern offers two of the loveliest and newest necklines, each very flattering; with a choice of three different sleeve versions. You'll love this frock made in dainty small flower print. But for that smart "color contrast" so much spoken of this season, why not stitch up another frock with the slimming bodice and skirt panels in a contrasting shade? A black dress with green panels would be very chic—or wine or fuchsia with blue. Use sheer wool, silk or synthetic.

Pattern 4860 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 3/8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15c in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly name, address and style number.

Do you want to be a style leader in your set? Then write at once for the popular Lillian Mae Pattern Book. It's filled with hints on how to be thrifter and smarter—how to look younger, slimmer, more glamorous—how to be correctly dressed for every fashionable setting, whether sunlit or moonlit. Don't delay in sending for this fascinating book, and make yourself some really striking new clothes. Price of book 15c. Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Smart Sports Fashions by Barbara Bell

Here's a fashion you'll see at all the smartest play places—usually of linen in dusty pastels, trimmed with ricrac. It's both play suit and frock, and either way very flaring and flattering, with its tiny, tiny waist and double rows of ricrac that give a yoke effect to the frock in front. This generous use of ricrac, by the way, is an important style point in the sports mode. And could you ask to see a smarter, better-fitting bolero?

Design 1557-B enables you so inexpensively, and with so little trouble, to have both a play suit and a sports frock of the newest and most flattering type. You'll find it very easy to make; your pattern includes a detailed sew chart. Percale, gingham or calico are other good choices for this, but linen is best!

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1557-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 5 5/8 yards of 35-inch material for the ensemble. Ten yards of ricrac. Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send 15c for the Barbara Bell Summer Fashion Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Rich Cutwork Easy to Make

Here's rich cutwork that really requires little work. You can do the flowers in a contrasting applique patch or just in cutwork. Make a set of sheet and pillow cases, a scarf or a pair of towels. Pattern 6086 contains a transfer pattern of 1 motif 6 1/2 by 20 inches, 2 motifs 6 by 15 1/4 inches and applique pattern pieces; materials needed; illustrations of stitches; color schemes. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in coin to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

Joyce Feeds and Waters a Hungry Puppy
And Gains a Very Helpful New Friend

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
William Ballard, an engineer successful as an inventor, loses everything, including the big San Francisco home, in the depression, the bank foreclosing on him the use of a rundown ranch, La Ferida, near Merriwell, and $1,200 a year while settling his affairs. The children and his wife Sarah are rebellious and helpless. Felicity, now 24, doesn't know whether Archie Ross will marry her when he returns from Scotland, where he went to see his uncle after his father suggested just before the financial crash that Ballard invest $25,000 in the Ross business "for Felicity." Dora, 20, has been listless since wealthy Devereau Patterson left suddenly to quit college, and Paul, 17, has changed Joyce's world by proposing. They teach the ranch on a dismal, rain day but Joyce, 19, absorbs some of her father's spirit as he milks four cows, feeds the chickens and soothes some of her stops talk of getting somebody to clean up the neglected ranch house by starting himself and they all help clumsily. While the parents are attending Cousin Laura's funeral Paul drives out and insists that they all clean the yard. Laura leaves a large sack of coal in the ranch, family by announcing he will pay all his debts and devote the rest to assisting his father's future on the ranch. Mike Tallant, an Englishman who has been living in a shack far out on the ranch, becomes the "bird hand." NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

bones here, and milk—shall I put some cream on it?"
"I think perhaps some hot water—he's hardly more than a baby, don't you know?"
Joyce tipped the singing kettle, set a bowl before the trembling little dog, watched his small body quiver with eagerness as he noisily nosed into the warmed rich milk. When she glanced up the man was watching her rather than the dog, a smile on his thin brown face.
"I usually go down with Swede when I need meat," he explained as he and Joyce sat down at the kitchen table to wait for the puppy to finish his meal. "But like a fool I twisted my foot, raking the other day and it's made me lazy."
"Shouldn't a doctor see your foot, perhaps?"
"Oh, no, it's quite all right now. But I've run out of provisions meanwhile."
Joyce glanced at the cupboard. "Did you have some lunch? There's some cold pork here, and biscuits; they're not very good. My sister and I made them and they sort of spread," Joyce offered in shy eagerness.
"I'd love it," the caller said. Excited and pleased, Joyce brought forth the cold food and the plates; added a tall glass of milk. "Real food tastes good," the man said, eating hungrily. "I've been living on cereals and vegetables." "Have you come far?" Joyce sat down opposite him at the table.
"No, about two miles," he said. "About two miles from where?"
"Shack," he said with a jerk of his head backward toward the hills.
"What shack?"
"There's an old shack way up at the top of your woodlot."
"But do you live there?"
"Oh, kind of."
"Doing what?"
"Well—waiting for the fruit-picking to start," he said in a pleasant voice after a moment's hesitation. "Strawberries are about ready, then cherries and so on. They go on right to prunes and grapes."
"Is that what you do?"
"That's what I have been doing. I mean I did last year, when Chuck Chickering was on this place. He went south when you came and I moved up to the cabin. You're one of the Bullards, aren't you?"
"Ballard. And what's your name?" Joyce asked flatly.
Mike Tallant. His name was Mike Tallant. He was about 30, Joyce thought, about Archie Ross's age. He had a nice, thin face all one tawny color, skin and eyes and hair and eyebrows all brown together. He wore an old brown sweater and green corduroys and heavy old brown shoes.
Finishing his meal, he told her that he was English and had come to America with a doctor who wanted to work on some special research problems. And then he hadn't gone home because there was nothing much to take him home. He had drifted west. He had meant to write a book about labor conditions, but the world was so thoroughly rotten and people everywhere either morose or corrupt, that he had given it up.
"Which daughter are you—Swede's told me about you all," he ended his story with an abrupt and deliberate change of subject.
"Joyce."
"That's a good English name. I'd a cousin Joyce, once. And where do you come in?"

"I'm the youngest. Had you—back in England—sisters and brothers?"
Michael Tallant got to his feet. He answered in a gentle steady tone.
"I had two brothers much older. And a sister Gill. Ronny and George didn't come back, in '15. Gill died the day her husband was killed. There was to have been a baby and she had flu, anyway. That was that." He was going; they were in the doorway. "If you'll let me have some milk now and then we'll be eternally grateful," he said.
"Us? You haven't got a wife up there in the cabin?" Joyce demanded, diverted.
"Nope." His pleasant grin flashed again as he answered.
"And don't forget that really and truly we'd love you to use as much milk as you like. Until we get pigs anyway!" Joyce was laughing as she went back into the house to her unfinished letter. "You do have adventures in the country," she thought. "Oh at least everything's so dull that you feel as if they were adventures. Somehow the little things seem to matter so and time goes so fast! I must write this to Paul!"
When the family arrived home two days later, at sunset, it was immediately apparent that the news was bad. Sally Ballard's face was very white; Lissy came into the kitchen on a burst of nervous tears and William Ballard, although he spoke cheerfully enough to the son and daughters assembled there, was plainly nervous.

TWO FAMOUS BALLOONISTS.

Among the famous balloonists of the past century, two men stand out above all others—Charles Green and John Wise.

Charles Green was an Englishman who made scores of ascents. In his day, balloons were filled with hydrogen gas, not hot air. The hydrogen gas had great lifting power, but Green thought it was too costly and too dangerous. "Why not use common coal gas?" he asked.

John Wise was a Philadelphia man. On a May day in 1835, he made his first ascent, rising from a spot near the corner of Ninth and Green streets.

Later he made more than 400 other ascents, many of them in places far from Philadelphia. Once he rose from St. Louis, which at that time was a city of the "western frontier" of the United States. Near the end of his long life, Wise prepared for a long journey which he did not make—a trip across the Atlantic ocean. He built a balloon with a bag which would hold 400,000 cubic feet of gas.

Wise believed that if he rose to a great height, strong east-moving winds would carry him to Europe. The test was made, but owing to a last-minute change, the balloon was piloted by W. H. Donaldson, not by Wise. The trip started at Brooklyn, N. Y., and ended near the Canadian town, a distance of 41 miles. Just before the balloon crashed to the ground, Donaldson's two companions jumped from the basket. The flyers suffered injuries, but none was killed.

In 1879 Wise was drowned in Lake Michigan as the result of an accident during a balloon trip.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling f. o. b. 9.25.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(P)
Average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 10 points lower at 8.58 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 markets was 8.86 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(P)
Further tired long liquidation in cotton today encountered an indifferent demand. Prices sagged to close at the lows for the day, at net losses of 11 to 14 points. December eased from 8.66 to 8.58.

The market opened 4 to 7 points lower under foreign and domestic liquidation and hedge selling.

Principal source of attention was private crop reports, one of which today piled the crop at 115,446 bales with condition at 69.2 per cent and yield per acre at 206.6 pounds, a slight gain over the same estimate last month. There was a 100 per cent increase from October from breaking to 8 1-2 cents but buying was slow and usually confined to a scale down.

Exports, 5,718, making 5,946,-448 for the season just closed. Port receipts, 10,339; U. S. port stocks, 2,422,473.

Despite the continued holiday at Liverpool, some early selling was attributed to that source. Less activity was noted in the London market of quietness in the cotton goods markets and a lessened domestic demand for spot cotton.

The two private crop estimates issued thus far show increases of 293,000 and 680,000 bales above those of a month ago. Advice to the cotton growers from the Exchange service indicate that the yield per acre in the eastern 40 per cent of the belt may fall below the average of the past five years but that in the remaining 60 per cent it may yield above the average of these years.

COTTON PRICES DIP IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(P)—Cotton futures prices eased off 12 to 13 points here today under bearish end-of-the-year figures, a large private production estimate and lower stock.

Liverpool had a holiday but Bombay was a shade higher and Alexandria somewhat lower. Dry goods markets continued dull.

Pot receipts, 9,009; for week (x) 9,900; for season (x) 9,009. Exports, 4,679; for week (x) 4,679; for season (x) 4,679. Port stocks, 2,414,583. Stock on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 20,408; last year, 15,608. Spot sales at southern markets, 6,861; last year, 5,396.

(x)—New season started today.

Cottonseed Oil

At Cottonseed Products

NEW YORK:

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—Cottonseed oil earlier today, under increased liquidation prompted by the weakness of late and lower cotton, and uncovering of shorts, advanced 1/2 cent to 17 1/2 cents per point net lower. Sales 210 contracts, including 100,000 bushels. September closed 8.55, October 8.50, December 8.48, January 8.30, March 8.52.

MEMPHIS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 1.—Prime cottonseed meal futures (41 per cent) closed 23.00, September 22.75, October 23.00, November 23.25, December 23.45, January 23.60, February 23.75, March 23.85, May 23.80.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—Cottonseed oil closed steady; bleachable prime summer yellow 8.30c; prime crude 7.19 1/2c. Receipts 1,000 bbls. Sales 1,000 bbls. September 8.04c, January 8.05c, March 8.07c, B-Bid; n-nominal.

Position of Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The position of the treasury July 29: Receipts $14,330,000, disbursements $14,330,000, cash balance $2,117,319,381.75, including $1,528,400,761.67 for the month $22,174,728.82.

3D TERM OPPOSED BY SENATOR LEWIS

Attempt by Roosevelt Would Destroy Democratic Party, He Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, an administration stalwart, said in an interview today that an attempt by President Roosevelt to obtain a third term "would destroy the Democratic party."

He added he knew the President was "not such a man as to present himself for a continuous third term."

Lewis said Mr. Roosevelt could be nominated only if a party of "extreme radicalism" sprang up, threatening government ownership of all enterprises and repudiation of all government securities, and businessmen urged that the President be renominated to run against it.

SENATOR SMATHERS HOPES FOR THIRD TERM

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP)—United States Senator William H. Smathers, Democrat, New Jersey, announced tonight he had only one political ambition left—"To help elect President Roosevelt for a third term."

After that, Smathers said, he will remain in the senate until his term expires four years hence and then "retire to private life."

Smathers said he wanted President Roosevelt to run for a third term because "there is no one big enough or strong enough to carry on for him."

BOY DROWNS IN FLORIDA

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Donald Starr, 13-year-old son of Harry Starr, of Holly Hill, near Daytona Beach, was drowned in the Halifax river here today when a small boat in which he and Raymond Parker, 12, were sailing overturned in a sudden squall.

Thermometer Hits 126 1-2 in California

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Southern California sizzled today in a heat wave that shot the thermometer as high as 126 1-2 degrees at one spot.

Los Angeles recorded 95-degrees shortly after noon with humidity of 39 per cent. It was the hottest day of the year.

Rice, desert spot in the metropolitan water district, reported the high mark, 126 1-2 degrees. At Parker Dam, also on the desert, the reading was 115 degrees. Paris had 117.

7 HURT WHEN BOLT EXPLODES POWDER

Homes Within 10 Miles
Rocked by Blast.

MOOSIC, Pa., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Seven persons were injured today when lightning ignited black blasting powder in an E. I. du Pont de Nemours explosives plant near here.

Four company employees suffered minor burns from sparks and three persons walking as far as a mile away were injured by shattered glass and flying metal.

Homes within a 10-mile area were rocked by the explosion, dishes jarred from shelves and nearly all windows in near-by residences were shattered.

YOUNG WIDOW, MAN, 28, FOUND DEAD IN AUTO

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The bodies of Mrs. Ann Bowman, attractive young widow, and Henry Murray, 28, were found today in the woman's trailer parked near the Allegheny county airport.

Coroner P. J. Kenney reported that the woman "probably" fired two bullets into the breast of Murray, her sweetheart, and then killed herself. A revolver, three shells fired, lay between the bodies. Both Murray and Mrs. Bowman lived in Homestead.

SEARCH IS WIDENED FOR HAWAII CLIPPER

New Areas Are Scanned in Fourth Day of Mid-Ocean Hunt.

MANILA, Aug. 2.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Determined forces of the United States army and navy started at dawn today to scan new areas of ocean in their fourth day of search for the Hawaii Clipper which disappeared five days ago with 15 persons aboard.

Undiscouraged by the long search over a vast sea area which yielded only a great, ominous cloud of oil on the Pacific some 500 miles east of Manila, the army and navy still hoped to find some trace of the great seaplane's six passengers and nine crewmen—or bits of wreckage to explain their fate.

The navy commanders worked on the theory that the last position sent by the flying boat at 12:09 p. m. Friday (Manila time) might have been in error, and they ordered the search widened.

Some ships will veer southeastward and hunt in a new region; others will steam northeastward of the area previously searched, and still others will resweep the region already combed.

Optimists pointed to the fact that no bit of wreckage had been found and hoped that the flying boat might still ride the waves or be ashore on some isolated island of the 7,000 bits of land in the Philippine archipelago. But pessimism seemed to overbalance hopes that the missing Clipper would be found safe—if found at all.

BOWMAN HOTEL SOLD

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fred Bowman today announced the sale of the 110-room Bowman hotel and adjoining property to Pierre Bailly, of Paris, France, for $350,000 cash.

Maytag Strike Case Faces Arbitrary Closing by State Troops.

NEWTON, Iowa, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Arbitrary closing of a National Labor Relations Board hearing here by the Iowa National Guard tonight threatened to precipitate a clash between federal and state authorities.

Governor Nelson G. Kraschel, as commander-in-chief of the Iowa National Guard on strike duty here, ordered the troops to close the hearings when they convened at 10 a. m. today.

Madison Hill, NLRB trial examiner, acting on advice of his Washington headquarters, accepted service of the military's order and declared the inquiry was in recess for 48 hours—until 10 a. m. Wednesday.

At Washington, NLRB spokesmen, however, denied the boss was "in no sense recognition of the validity of the Governor's order."

In Des Moines, Governor Kraschel retorted: "You can tell the cockeyed world that there will be no Labor Relations Board hearing in the military district of Iowa."

The Governor previously expanded this district to include the entire state.

The Governor gave as his principal reason for closing the hearing the fact that he thought a "disturbing influence" to both sides interfering with possible settlement of the strike.

CARRIERS SUGGEST WAGE MEDIATION

Brotherhoods Oppose New Move and Deny Deliberate Delay.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Railroad management sought today to speed up its negotiations with union leaders or call a federal mediator.

As the conferences over the railroads' proposed 15 per cent wage cut entered the third week, H. A. Enoch, chairman of the carriers' joint committee, announced the parties had made no progress.

He urged the second step provided by law in railroad labor disputes—federal mediation.

A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, replied: "We are not purposely delaying these negotiations, but we desire to settle this matter by negotiation rather than by mediation or by a presidential fact-finding commission."

"If the negotiations fail, then it is time for the other steps, but we want to present our evidence in the negotiations."

Enoch said brotherhood officials were "seemingly unwilling to recognize that the railroads are in dire need" and that the carriers were "going to insist on cutting wages 15 per cent."

"The men whom I represent," countered Whitney, "will not allow you to take money obtained by slashing their wages and give it to the bondholders."

BALL BAT ATTACK ON PICKETS IS TOLD

Witnesses Testify on Violent
Breaking of Steel Strike at Monroe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The senate civil liberties committee received testimony today that volunteer policemen equipped with tear gas, bilbies and baseball bats purchased by the Republic Steel Corporation dispersed pickets outside the Monroe, Mich., plant of that company.

That done, the 1937 strike in "Little Steel" was ended, so far as Monroe was concerned. But prior to that time, witnesses said, a negro organizer had been severely beaten and run out of town, after fruitless appeals to the police, and supervisors in the plant inspired a group of workers to "A" a telegram protesting the strike to John L. Lewis. The message was given wide publicity.

In the weeks following, nervous at reports that CIO men in other cities intended to invade Monroe, James S. Torbic, Republic's police chief there, received "undercover information" from a mysterious "Jack Smith" and ultimately paid him $1,000 lest, he said, the man sue him and the senate committee learn that such tactics were being used.

"I thought it out later," said Torbic, "I think he just plain blackmailed me."

Georgia-Florida Join in Plans On Road Traffic

Plans for closer co-operation in the construction and maintenance of interstate highways were worked out at a conference of highway officials of Georgia and Florida.

Chairman W. L. Miller and Chief Engineer Eugene Stanley represented Georgia, and Chairman A. B. Hale and Chief Engineer J. H. Dowling represented Florida.

"Practically the same roads which carry the heavy traffic in Georgia carry the heavy traffic in Florida," Miller said, discussing the conference. "We are in accord in the matter of maintaining these important routes."

The Georgia board chairman added that the two states also were co-operating in the fixing of detours and in advertising them.

"Where there is so much interstate travel many small problems come up that we need such a conference as we had today to keep things ironed out," Miller said.

Chairman Miller went to his farm in Lanier county following the conference. He will remain there a day or two attending the sale of his tobacco crop.
